

The Burian.

March, 1926.

VOL. XVII., No. 5.

Editorial.

NOW as the year returns and everyone looks for the blossoming of the flowers and listens for the singing of the birds, so, just as naturally, and expectantly, we believe, do Burians await the advent of the Easter Magazine. Here it is, at last. We trust our readers may find in its perusal during the holidays a pleasure at least equal to the joy of anticipation.

As yet the term is incomplete since the last week, that of maximum effort, and, we hope, most glorious achievement, still lies before us. Despite the weather and some minor ailments there has been a steady advance in work. After a close struggle the Lancastrian House has gained the top position. With the Tudor, who came second, they overtook the Yorkists in the last working week of term.

In games the Tudor House has distinguished itself by winning all matches both of the first and second elevens. There has been a pleasing exhibition of verve in all the games. In matches the Team has given displays of skill and doggedness that will live in the memory; their win over Ely by 6—1 was a really fine performance.

The Corps is maintaining its reputation for smartness and efficiency and has entered for the Country Life shooting competition, in which, we believe, some of the marksmen obtained very creditable groups.

We are pleased to hear that the Old Boys, under the leadership of their indefatigable secretary, are getting together and that recently a number of them enjoyed an evening together, dining at the Criterion and exchanging reminiscences of their doings at the Old School.

The shortness of this term, which is due to the early date of Easter, will be compensated by the length of the summer term. We hope that in it the weather will become more moderate and allow us all to indulge in the extremes of painstaking and pleasure at work and play. After a short holiday we expect to see everyone arriving back with their happiest smiles to greet the longest, pleasiest, busiest, and last term of the School year.

Obituary.

[From "The Times" of January 2nd.]

THE REV. GEORGE HENSLAW.

We regret to announce that Professor George Henslow, the eminent botanist, died at his residence, Danehurst, Branksome Park Road, Bourne-mouth, on Wednesday, in his 91st year.

George Henslow, who was born on March 23rd, 1835, was the son of the Rev. John Stevens Henslow, rector of Hitcham, Suffolk, and Professor of Botany in the University of Cambridge, who has been described as the pioneer of practical elementary teaching in botany. George was educated privately at Sawston Parsonage, Cambs., and afterwards at the Grammar School of Bury St. Edmund's. In 1854 he became a scholar of Christ's College, Cambridge. He must have worked hard at the university as he not only gained a first-class in the Natural Sciences Tripos, but also a second-class in both Mathematics and Divinity. A reference in Mr. Leonard Huxley's "Life and Letters of Sir Joseph Hooker" indicates that in his student days young Henslow was considering a career as a botanist.

However, after taking his B.A. in 1858, Henslow was ordained and became curate of Steyning, Sussex, where he remained till 1861, when he was appointed headmaster of Hamp'on Lucy Grammar School, Warwick; four years later he became headmaster of a Grammar School in Store Street, London, remaining there till 1872. He was curate at St. John's Wood Chapel from 1868 to 1870, and from 1870 to 1887 assistant minister at St. James's, Marylebone. In 1886 he was appointed Lecturer on Botany at St. Bartholomew's Medical School, where he served until 1890; he also held botanical lectureships at the Birkbeck Institute and Queen's College, London. For many years he was Honorary Professor of Botany to the Royal Horticultural Society, and examiner in botany to the College of Preceptors. He did useful work in helping to popularize science, and was frequently at the service of local natural history societies; from 1882 to 1904 he was President of the Ealing Natural History Society.

Henslow was a good lecturer. He had a clear and fluent delivery, and took great pains to present his subject in an attractive manner with the help of illustrative specimens and drawings. His afternoon lectures at the meetings of the Royal Horticultural Society were much appreciated by amateurs who were glad to learn something more about their plants than names and methods of cultivation. His scientific communications to the Linnean Society, though often adversely criticized, were models of clear exposition. He was, indeed, an exponent rather than an investigator. While accepting the general idea of evolution, he was unable to follow Darwin's explanation of the origin of species by the natural selection of chance variations. He maintained that the environment had played a very active part in the origin and development of existing plant-structures. In his two volumes, published in the International Science Series, "The Origin of Floral Structures" (1888) and "The Origin of Plant Structures" (1895), this view was developed. He also published several useful books for elementary students, "Botany for Children," "How to Study Wild Flowers," and "South African Flowering Plants," and also wrote on "The Uses of British Plants," "Poisonous Plants," and "The Plants of the Bible." On a different plane were some works on the bearing of science on theology, such as "Evolution and Religion," "Christian Beliefs Reconsidered in the Light of Modern Thought," and "Present-day Rationalism Critically Examined."

In physique Henslow was broad and well-set with an impressive bearing; to the passer-by he looked the prosperous Churchman of assured position. As a chairman, or in any position requiring dignity of bearing or a little of the grand manner, he was excellent. But his somewhat didactic manner and a tendency to dogmatize were sometimes resented by his fellow scientists, though they could not but admire his enthusiasm. His kindly disposition and readiness to help on any movement for the spread of knowledge brought him many friends during the course of an unusually long and varied life. In his later years, which were spent in retirement at Bourne-mouth, he became interested in Spiritualism. He was twice married; his first wife died in 1875; the second, whom he married in 1882, also died before him. He was a Fellow of the Linnean and Geological Societies, and the Royal Horticultural Society signified appreciation of his services by appointing him one of the 60 original Victoria Medallists of Honour in 1897.

London Letter.

I met Jack Hinnell the other day on Westminster Bridge, and he reminded me that I had promised to write the London Letter this term. I told him that I was no good at writing London Letters, but he said he could not possibly do it himself on account of his going to Belgium to play hockey for the United Hospitals. So I told him I would do my best, and here it is.

It is really unnecessary for me to say that the most important event which has taken place in London this term was the Old Boys' dinner at the New Criterion, for a full account of which let me refer you to another page of this number. But I will just say this, that thanks to the hard work of its organiser, it was a huge success. A gathering like this enables Old Boys, who perhaps have not seen each other since leaving school, to meet and talk over old times, and, further, the older Old Boys can hear "all the latest" about the School from those who have just left.

Three Old Boys went to Olympia together at the beginning of the year to see the Circus, and had a fine time. One of them wanted to buy one of the lion cubs to keep as a pet—he thought it would cause quite a sensation if he took it up to the School on a chain one day—but, unfortunately, it was not for sale. They all three entered for a motor-driving test, and one of them won two (gold?) medals—we expect he will soon be racing at Brooklands!

Our two budding young lawyers-to-be suddenly came across each other during their studies at the Law Courts the other day. They had not met since they left school, but although one did not recognise the other, the other recognised the one, who had not altered any more than a new Pin.

I was very sorry (and I feel sure most other Old Boys will share in my sorrow) to read in the last number of the Burian that boys at the School now remain in the Scouts till they are "approximately fourteen." This must lessen the numbers in the Corps, which is a great pity, because the Corps, besides being a much older institution, is, as I am sure everyone will agree, of much more importance than the Scout Troop. In years gone by it was always an understood thing for all boys to join the Corps at the age of about twelve, and sometimes younger. They were, of course, small (just about the same height as the rifle they carried) but that did not matter—it strengthened the numbers in the Corps, which is the great thing. This gave most boys about six years in the Corps, and, naturally, made it very efficient. If boys don't join till they are fourteen they cannot be ready to go to camp till they are fifteen, whereas we used to go to camp when we were fourteen, and I know one case of an "under thirteen but acting fifteen" going. I may add that he was one of the keenest Cadets the School has ever seen, and is now in the H.A.C. I therefore ask: Can't something be done about it? The O.T.C. comes first. I know all Old Boys will back me up.

I think there is nothing more for me to say in this letter. It is rather bad luck on the one who has to write the London Letter, because it is no use for him to give any news about Old Boys, as that is all done in the Old Boys' Notes, nor about any special event, such as the Old Boys' Dinner, because the secretary is sure to write a special article on that. I will conclude, therefore, by sending best wishes to the School, from all Old Boys in London.

C. J. H.

We gladly publish the above letter in full, as requested, because though the criticisms of the Scout Troop are based on a misapprehension, and mistaken, close scrutiny and friendly criticism of School activities by Old Boys are excellent for the School, and a welcome symptom of interest in the School's welfare.

Dealing in turn with each point of the criticisms:—

It is stated that "the fact that boys remain in the Scout Troop till approximately 14 years of age must diminish the number in the Corps." The answer to this is, War Office Regulations forbid the enrolment in the Corps of boys under 13½ years of age. Whatever may have been the case in the past, this regulation is now enforced. Hence, if the number of boys in the Corps has suffered by the exclusion of those under about 14, the cause of this diminution lies with the War Office Regulation, and not with the Scout Troop. If there were no Scout Troop for the boys under about 14, then, as such boys are not allowed to belong to the Contingent, some other, and less valuable, form of training would have to be found for them while the Corps was on parade. Actually, the Scout Troops affords excellent preparation for the Corps. The O.C. Contingent reports that recruits who come to him from the Scouts have a useful knowledge of discipline, squad drill, signalling, etc., and also have had valuable camp experience, which they could not otherwise have obtained. Ex-Scouts are some of the keenest members of the Corps.

Next, it is stated that "If boys do not join the Corps till they are about 14 they cannot be ready to go to camp until they are about 15." Again the answer is that it is forbidden by War Office Regulation to take to the O.T.C. Camp boys who are under the age of 14 years and 8 months. This Regulation is likewise enforced. The O.C. Contingent is now required to give a certificate that it has been observed. Any Contingent that now took to Camp a boy "under 13 but acting 15" would be regarded by the Military Authorities as not playing the game, and become liable to severe penalties. O.T.C. Cadets too young for the O.T.C. Camp are invited to attend the Scout Camp, hence the Scout Troop is of further assistance to the O.T.C.

Further, we read that "Numerical strength is the great thing." Of course, numbers are very important, but efficiency is even more important. The War Office judges of efficiency by the Annual Inspection Report, and, more particularly, by the number of Cadets who pass the examination for Certificate "A." Judged by both these tests, the Corps is growing in efficiency.

Last, it is stated that "the Corps is more important than the Scouts." Comparisons of this sort are beside the point. Each organisation serves a different purpose; each is complementary to the other; as boys grow older they pass from the Scout Troop to the Corps, and thus gain benefits from both.

Now to add some further particulars:—

At the present moment there are four Scouts, and four only, who were over 13½ years of age last September. In all cases parental permission was then sought for these boys to pass on to the Corps. In all four cases special request was made by parents for these boys to remain in the Scout Troop for another year. The reasons seemed good and sufficient to the Headmaster, who, with the concurrence of the O.C. Contingent, acceded to the parents' request. In view of his long connection with another Contingent of the O.T.C. before coming to Bury, it is not to be supposed that the Headmaster would sanction anything contrary to the best interests of the Bury School Contingent.

Except for these cases, and for three other boys who, by doctor's orders, are not allowed to play games, or to belong to either the Corps or the Scout Troop, all boys who were over 13½ years of age last September belong to the Contingent, the strength of which now is thirty-nine Cadets and two Officers. (The present strength of the Scout Troop is forty-two Scouts and two Officers).

In conclusion, the writer of the letter may rest assured that everything possible is being done to keep the Corps up to full strength and efficiency; and that the Scout Troop is, and always has been, since its inception not quite three years ago, for boys who are too young for the O.T.C. What the Scout Troop is doing for these younger boys must be seen to be fully realised.

London Old Boys' Dinner.

As a result of the activity of Old Boys in London, it was decided to have a dinner. The Old Boys "got going" with the arrangements, and the dinner was held at the New Criterion, Piccadilly, on Friday, February 19th. The following were present: E. F. Wise, N. W. N. Stansbury, G. W. Harding, H. A. Conlan, C. J. Hinnell, G. A. F. Parry, C. G. Seth, W. L. Shaw, E. W. Whiting, E. N. Plumridge and G. J. Hinnell.

Unfortunately, Wise had to leave early to keep a business appointment, but, before doing so, expressed his keenness in the Old Boys' Association, and hoped it would continue to flourish and maintain the high traditions of the School.

After dinner, various matters with regard to the Old Boys' Association were discussed. We discussed the question of an Old Boys' tie, and it was suggested that some combination of the School hockey colours should be used. At present we are waiting for news from W. L. Shaw, who promised to obtain some designs for us.

It was decided to try and arrange matches every term between Old Boys, Royalists and Foreigners. These matches should be very interesting, and we expect to see some of the old warlike spirit revived. It is hoped that the first of these matches will be a cricket match on Saturday, June 19th, to be played on the School ground.

Many of those present had not met since they left School, so, naturally, there was much to talk about. The dinner, being a great success, we hope to have them at least once a year. All those present promised to turn up at the dinner in Bury, so we all hope, and are confident that July 17th should be "a good show."

Old Boys' Notes.

All Old Boys please note the following dates:—

Saturday, June 19th, probable date of match between Old Boys, Royalists and Foreigners.

Saturday, July 17th, date of Old Boys' cricket match, to be followed by the annual dinner in the evening. Please keep these dates free.

Congratulations to J. N. B. Ashton on playing hockey for Beckenham v. Cambridge University. He played centre-forward, the position his brother Tom used to fill with so much success a few years ago. Besides hockey, Ashton is sweating at "Law" in preparation for examinations, for which he has our best wishes.

Several Old Burians have been appearing in Bury's theatrical world lately. C. R. Yelloly took the part of Charles the wrestler in "As You Like It." Anyone who knows "Old 2" can imagine the part suiting him well. Did he appear on the local cinema screens?

S. S. Strickland took the part of the Rev. Adrian Rylands in "Tilly of Bloomsbury." We are told he was very amusing, and we expect to hear more of his theatrical successes.

G. A. F. Parry was present at the Chelsea Arts Ball this year. We are told that he made his own costume, which was chiefly head-dress, and looked "perfectly sweet." O! Geoffrey!

G. W. Harding is playing hockey for Cheam, and by the way of evening amusement is taking part in "Merry England." The O.B.A. seems to be very theatrical these days.

N. W. N. Stansbury, who has recently joined the O.B.A., is keeping Ashton company at the Law Courts. We wish them the best of luck with their examinations, which are to be held shortly.

C. G. Seth has been playing hockey for the H.A.C., and has been showing some of his old school day form of skill with the "hockey knocker."

E. W. Whiting is at the Head Office of Lever Brothers, in the accounts department. He hopes to take the Bachelor of Commerce Degree shortly.

E. J. Mackenzie is now farming at Harlow, in Essex, and is working so hard that he was unable to be present at the Old Boys' dinner.

THINGS WE WANT TO KNOW:—

Did C. J. H. try to travel on the Southern Railway from Waterloo to Mortlake with a penny tram ticket after the Old Boys' dinner?

Is G. A. F. P. going on the stage?

How many people were present at G. H. L.'s first sermon? Also does this Old Boy keep a separate account for telegrams?

Has the firm with which H. A. C. works installed new telephones yet, because whenever the Old Boys' secretary try to 'phone him, the answer is either "Number engaged" or "'Phone out of order?" Also how many times did H. A. C. answer the secretary's letter about the Old Boys' dinner?

Foreign Letter.

STE. ADRESSE,

NORMANDY,

MARCH, 1926.

DEAR SIR,

Having just realised that it is time I attempted to write another letter to the Burian, I will now try and say something more about this Fair Land of France. Although I have changed my address since last writing, yet I am still by the sea; in fact, the house is right on the sea-front. There has been a really stormy storm in the night, and the sea still looks pretty savage. But, as the object of this letter is to talk about things which are typically French, I will switch off the sea subject, as, curiously enough, the sea here is quite like the sea at Felixstowe, or even at good old Yarmouth. That is to say, very wet, and rather watery.

In January the Seine provided great excitement by overflowing its banks. I did not see it at Paris, but when I was at Rouen the river was so high that pilot boats coming up from Havre used to cause a kind of tidal wave in the main streets. (That is to be taken with several pinches of salt).

Talking about Rouen, reminds me that that is where the English burnt Joan of Arc in the year 1066, or thereabouts (having forgotten all my history, I am not very certain about the date). I went over the Tower, where she was imprisoned, and saw the spot where she was burnt at the stake, in the old Market Place. In Rouen there is the famous Rue de la Gross Horloge, which is so called because of a huge clock which forms a kind of bridge over the street. The trams in Rouen are distinctly primitive, but they do not rival the ones in Brittany, which I mentioned in my last epistle to the Burians.

A good many things in France appear to date from the Iron Age, including railway trains and gendarmes on point duty. But at the moment I am thinking of the P. and O. liner which carries on a daily service between Havre and Honfleur. I hasten to add that P. and O. stands for "Prehistoric and Original," the boat being the original one from which Noah got his ideas about the Ark. It has two big paddle-wheels, and one very long, slender funnel. The latter always makes me think of a certain very lengthy Old Boy.

There are some really big liners, however, which take people to and from New York. The service is not yet daily, but, of course, this is the dead season. The "Paris" takes about 3,000 passengers, and the "France" about 2,000, and they both look like palaces inside. If it was not for the fact that nobody on earth could possibly mistake a French Customs Officer for the policeman at Hyde Park Corner, one would be inclined to think that one had been visiting Buckingham Palace after having spent an afternoon looking round the "Paris."

By the way, I read "Mauprat" the other day, having nothing very much to do. It was quite interesting, and very exciting. I was so surprised that I very nearly ran into the town to buy "Le Blocus" and "Les Aventures de Chicot." One never knows. It is quite possible now that they are interesting also. Which reminds me of Mr. Richards. Do you remember how he used to say, "Ever been to Timbuctoo? No? Well, never mind; you'll all go there within the next three years." Well, in about a week's time I am going to Santander, in Spain. Of course, that is not Timbuctoo, but it is on the way, at all events. It is rather a pretty spot, I believe, close to the sea, and surrounded by mountains. I am hoping to spend the summer there.

Meals in France are not quite the same as in England. For breakfast, for instance, one never has anything but rolls and butter, and, if one is lucky, jam. I am hoping that Spaniards breakfast off bacon and eggs, but I am afraid they won't. Somehow, bacon and eggs do not sound in the least Spanish. Anyhow, I hope they do not give me ginger cake and cheese. That is what I had to eat for breakfast in Holland.

Shrove Tuesday, or Mardi Gras, as it is called, is a great carnival time here. Everybody walked about the streets in the most extraordinary masks and fancy dresses. All the students from the Lycée turned out in red fezz, and amused themselves by stopping the trams. I could almost have imagined myself to be in Cambridge. Talking about festivals reminds me of Christmas. On the eve of this fête one does not hang one's stocking on the corner post of the bed, but one puts a pair of shoes in the dining-room hearth, so that the Père Noël can slide down the chimney, arrange his presents, and then hop up the chimney, and drive off again. I must say I like this idea, as my tens proved a most capacious receptacle.

Cinemas in France only have one house nightly, from half-past eight till midnight. In the middle of the performance there is what they call an "entr'acte," when everybody leaves the cinema, so that it may be aired for twenty minutes or so. As there is nowhere to go, one simply has to walk about the streets for twenty minutes. If it is raining, this is most annoying. In the summer, at St. Malo, there are open-air cinemas, so that this compulsory interlude is unnecessary.

I think I have bored everybody sufficiently now, and, anyhow I cannot think of anything else to say, so I will close down. But wait a minute! I have just remembered an interesting piece of news. The shingle is going out of fashion here.

Goodnight everybody.

Hockey.

THE SCHOOL v. KING'S SCHOOL, ELY.

The away match was played on February 11th. The ground was soft, making fast, combined play very difficult. The School had most of the play in the first half, but Ely scored twice to our once.

In the second half, the School again had most of the play, but each side scored two goals, Ely thus winning by the odd goal of seven.

BURY SCHOOL v. DEPÔT.

This match was on February 20th, on the School Ground. The ground was in perfect condition, and the weather ideal. The School, winning the toss, played up the hill. The visitors made several rushes, but were stopped by the sound defence of the School. A short time before half-time, the visitors scored. The School were not able to equalise before half-time. After half-time the School broke away several times, then Gould scored with a good shot. Play was equal until the end, the match thus ending in a draw, 1—1.

J. C. J.

BURY SCHOOL v. CLARE.

This match was played on the School Ground, and resulted in a win for Clare, 4—0. Although the School were beaten by four clear goals, they had quite as much of the play as did their visitors, and were very unlucky in not scoring on more than one occasion.

Team.—James, goal; Wright, Bond, backs; Pike i., Robinson, Gowen, halves; Johnson ii., Alston, Gould, Jones i., Morley, forwards.

C. F. J.

ROYALISTS v. FOREIGNERS.

It is a curious fact that those who are in closest contact in everyday life, and amongst whom there is a perfect understanding of friendship, should, in the matter of sport, be such keen rivals. This fact is evidenced in all fields of sport, in teams and in individuals, and nowhere is it more apparent perhaps than in school "house" matches, and in matches between "day boys" and "boarders." I remember when I was at school the rivalry was so keen that during practically every "break," from mid-September till mid-May, there was a day boys v. boarders match in the school yard—a tennis ball being used, and each side numbering anything up to three dozen players!

This term we have seen this keen rivalry displayed in the annual Royalists v. Foreigners hockey match. After a drawn game, in which each side scored 2 goals, a re-play took place on March 6th. The ground was in very good condition, and the weather was ideal.

The game was full of incident, and was played at a very fast pace throughout. Undoubtedly there was more "life" in it than had been seen in any previous game on the field this season.

The Royalists opened the scoring, but it was not long before the Foreigners drew level. Again the Royalists scored, and again the Foreigners equalized. A third time the Royalists scored and their opponents drew level. Almost immediately afterwards the Foreigners scored again, thus gaining the lead. But they held the upper hand for a short time only, and in the last ten minutes of the game the Royalists scored twice, so the game ended in a victory for them by 5 goals to 4. Perhaps the Foreigners were a trifle unlucky to lose, but the Royalists would have been more unlucky if the final whistle had come with the score 4—3 against them.

The defences on both sides were pretty sound, and the back divisions cleared well. If there was any superiority it was in the Royalists' attacking line, which kept up a rather faster pace and showed a better understanding than the forward line of the Foreigners.

The scorers were, for the Royalists, Gould (3), Fulcher and Johnson ii.; for the Foreigners, Alston (3), and Marshall ii.

All the members of both teams showed great keenness, although in some cases, perhaps, this keenness resulted in vigorous, but erratic, play. It is difficult to single out individuals for praise, but special mention might be made of the amount of work got through by Alston, Pike and Lee, of some excellent stick work by Gould, and of the much improved, and at times really good, goalkeeping of James.

H. J. B.

Royalists.—Smith, goal; Randell, Wright, backs; Allen, Pike, Lee, halves; Fulcher, Graham, Gould, Lacey, Johnson ii. (Captain), forwards.

Foreigners.—James, goal; Bond, Jones, backs; Morley, Robinson, Stokes, halves; Home, Burnside, Marshall ii., Alston (Captain), Ruoff, forwards.

BURY SCHOOL v. KING'S SCHOOL, ELY.

This match was played on March 11th, on the School Ground; the weather conditions were ideal. In this match the School forwards combined very well, and in the first ten minutes Alston scored a good goal. Two more goals were scored by the School before half-time, to which Ely made no response. In the second half the School played downhill, and Gould scored four very smart goals.

The two backs played a very good game. Ely only scored once, but looked dangerous on several occasions when their Captain headed fierce rushes.

R. A. R. R.

CHARACTERS OF THE ELEVEN.

- †*D. ALSTON (Captain, inside right). Has proved himself a patient and resourceful Captain; his sound judgment and unflagging zeal have been great assets to the team. As an exponent of the game, his dash and quickness at getting away with the ball, the accuracy of his stick work, passing and shooting are entirely admirable.
- †*J. C. JOHNSON (outside right). He has played well all through the season, but must make sure of stopping the ball. Combines well with the other forwards, and centres accurately. Is very neat, but could, with advantage, use a little more push.
- *C. F. GOULD (centre forward). A consistent scorer, who makes use of his pace, and uses judgment in passing; should stop the ball before shooting.
- *R. A. R. ROBINSON (centre half). A very fast player who can get the ball to his forwards. He should not rely on the backs to pull up opposing forwards every time. Is good at making openings for his forwards. Is becoming much steadier and should make a very strong player.
- *E. H. WRIGHT (right back). The steadiest person in the team. He tackles well and covers his partner and clears admirably.
- *W. E. R. BOND (left back). An energetic player, but is inclined to undercut and come too far forward. Clears well.
- *H. J. PIKE (right half). Tackles exceedingly well, but is apt to hit too hard and erratically when passing.
- ||G. W. GOWEN (left half). Although slow, he is safe and judges his passes well. Must endeavour to get back quickly.
- ||J. JAMES (goal). Has greatly improved during the season, but must clear hard and quickly to his wing.
- ||M. L. LACEY (inside left). Is usually where he is required, but is inclined to keep the ball too long and so spoil the openings he frequently makes.
- ||F. H. JONES (outside left). Has done his best to fill a difficult position. Although slow, he centres well and shoots whenever possible.

Also played:—

F. R. STOKES (left half). An extremely energetic player who never gives up trying. When he gets the ball he should pass quicker and to an unmarked player if possible.

†1st Colours, 1925. *1st Colours, 1926.
||Half-colours, 1926.

SECOND ELEVEN CHARACTERS.

- *W. A. ALLEN (Captain, centre-half). Has captained his team well and deserves credit for its success. Is a vigorous player who never gives in, but is apt to subordinate science to dash.
- *J. N. MORLEY (right-back). Fills his position well. Tackles excellently, and keeps cool at critical moments; clears well.
- *H. K. F. MARSHALL II. (inside-left). His stick work is good. He passes neatly; must not get excited when nearing goal, but endeavour to shoot.
- *B. F. LEE (left-half). A steady player. Sticks to his man and clears well.
- *T. B. F. RUOFF (outside-right). A very hard-working and reliable player. Centres well.
- *N. D. HOME (centre-forward). A very useful forward when he likes to try; is inclined to be sleepy.
- †E. D. TURNER (left-back). Plays a steady but rather slow game. Is apt to become wild when hard pressed.
- †A. RANDELL (left-half). Tackles and clears well; but is at present handicapped by his size.
- †D. FULCHER (outside-left). Handicapped by being left-handed, but makes good efforts and centres strongly. Must learn to refrain from sticking and dribbling on the wrong side.
- †G. H. T. SMITH (goal). Is new to his position, but has improved greatly. Must learn to get right behind the ball.

†T. GRAHAM (inside-right). Is energetic and sure with his stick; is handicapped by his size. Should develop into a useful player.

Also played:—

P. E. G. BACON (outside-left). Stops the ball well, but is rather erratic and puts the ball over the goal-line far too frequently.

*2nd XI. Colours.

Games Review and Prospect.

The Hockey Season began with a fortnight of frosty weather, during which play was impossible, sliding and skating being substituted. There was no lack of keenness when at last the weather changed. After several practices, the members of the teams settled into their places and began to combine. Wright and Bond, who were removed from the half and forward lines respectively, have made an excellent and safe pair of backs. Robinson, Pike and Gowen were a strong half line, having speed, reach and hitting power, though they have been rather inclined to rely on the safety of the back division and leave opposing forwards unmarked. After many attempts to get a useful forward line, a very good combination was obtained in Jones, Lacey, Gould, Alston and Johnson ii., which, under the leadership of Alston, soon learnt to make ground, use their sticks admirably, and shoot quickly. Their accurate work and quickness on the ball were especially pleasing in the second Ely match. From several candidates for the difficult post of goalkeeper, James was ultimately selected, and he has filled the position very creditably.

The Royalists and Foreigners match was twice contested. Both games were fought with even more than usual of the traditional fury, the Royalists winning by the odd goal out of 13.

The Tudors easily carried off the Hockey Term Shield, winning all their matches in both the first and second elevens.

It is to be regretted that the East Anglians were unable, through illness, to play either of their fixtures. Since most of the matches still remain to be played, we cannot discuss results as yet, but await them with pleasurable anticipation. We hear that the Town team, which is the best in the neighbourhood, is eagerly seeking new members. We hope that members of our teams when they leave school will join up if they remain in the neighbourhood, as, since its inception by an Old Boy, the Town team has always contained numerous old Burians, many of whom have become county players.

The second XI. has given a good account of itself, and its members are to be congratulated on winning both of their matches against Ely. That more than half the team have been awarded their colours is a pleasing indication that there should be good material for future first XI.'s, and that the frequent organised practices, and the oversight of the lower games are producing good effects. We wish to thank Mr. Hendin and Mr. Bluet for their invaluable assistance in games and matches.

The first fortnight of next term will be devoted to training for the sports. Already the track has been marked out and some keen sportsmen have begun to practice. We anticipate hardily-contested events, and the possibility, if conditions are favourable, that some records may be broken. The number of prizes—exclusive of challenge cups—which may be carried off by an individual, is limited to three. We are much indebted to Mr. Carter, who has presented the School with a challenge cup, which is to be awarded for an inter-house team event.

The sight of cricket bats being taken out (for overhauling and oiling) recently was provocative of many smiles. We like to think that most of them were of pleasurable anticipation of the summer games. We hope for a warm season, and although many of last year's veterans will have left, we expect to see a keen young team, under the Captaincy of Gowen, give a good account of itself. A full fixture list has been arranged, which will be found below.

The field, though worn in places, has lasted out the winter remarkably well. On the less used parts the grass is remarkably strong and, with attention during the holidays, is likely to be in fine condition for the summer. We are pleased to hear that there is a likelihood of getting a well-qualified groundsman to do some work on the field this summer and during the Easter holidays.

O.T.C. Notes.

Although seven boys had left us by the end of last term, the gap thus caused has been filled in part by the addition of three recruits; these bringing the total number on the roll-books up to thirty-nine. The following promotions have been awarded:—Cadets Jones i. Pike i., and Bacon, to be Lance-corporals.

Owing to the shortness of the term and the inclemency of the weather, the work has been confined mainly to close order drill and musketry, while the use of the platoon for training the Certificate A candidates in practical work has occupied a certain amount of the parades. Not the least important part of the term's work has been the training and bringing into line of the recruits. For purposes of instruction they have been separated from the "old hands," and have made such rapid progress that, in most cases, it is impossible to distinguish them from the others when all are working together.

The Annual Shooting Competition, arranged by "Country Life," takes place on March 19th or 20th. Unfortunately, without an indoor range, we are forced to depend for practice on the vagaries of the weather, with the consequence that very little shooting has been possible this term. A little, however, has been done, and the following team has been selected to represent the School in the above competition:—Section Leader, Cpl. Alston; Bond, Jones i., Robinson, Wright, Allen i., Gooding, Stokes, Home; reserve, Turner.

Three candidates, Alston, Wright and Robinson, have been entered for Certificate A. They were all successful in passing the practical part, and we hope a similar result will crown their efforts in the theoretical part, which was taken on March 9th.

By the very kind arrangement of the Officers of the Depot, we were enabled to spend an interesting afternoon at Ickworth Park, on Tuesday, March 16th, when we witnessed a demonstration of the platoon in attack, ourselves constituting roughly the enemy. Although the enforced absence of blanks detracted somewhat from the interest (perhaps the only thrill was being charged at the point of the bayonet), some very instructive lessons were learnt.

After the demonstration, we were given practical instruction in open order formations, our efforts eliciting very favourable and gratifying comments from both the Depot Officers. A noticeable feature was the excellence of arms drill and other movements when under the critical eyes of "real" soldiers.

Early in the term the arms and equipment were inspected by the C.I.A.S. Examiners. As a consequence, the bayonets are to be sent away to be re-browned, which will, no doubt, lessen the demand for emery paper and burnishers. The Chief Examiner, whose duty it is to inspect the arms of every contingent in the United Kingdom, gave it as his opinion that, with possibly one exception, the state of our rifles, etc., including the arrangements for their storage, was better than that of any other contingent. This is, indeed, high praise, which we should bear in mind when tempted to scamp the weekly rifle-cleaning.

Camp this year will be held at Tidworth Park, Hants., which is only a mile or two distant from last year's camp at the Pennings. It is hoped that as many boys as are eligible will take the opportunity of this invaluable experience next August—an experience not to be missed, and one which will be unobtainable in after-life. And, what is equally important, the high reputation of our contingent will be seriously threatened if we continue to send a few Cadets to Camp as we have in the past year or two. Camp is practically the only occasion when we come under the eyes of other contingents, and except for the Annual Inspection, under the eyes of "Those in Authority."

Thus the Tudors carry off the Hockey Term Shield, having won all their matches.

The School Hockey Captain, D. Alston, has awarded 1st XI. Colours to J. Johnson ii., C. F. Gould, R. A. R. Robinson, W. E. R. Bond, E. H. Wright, and H. J. Pike; and Half-colours to G. W. Gowen, M. L. Lacey, F. H. Jones and J. James.

The Second XI. Captain, W. Allen, has awarded the following 2nd XI. Colours: Morley, Ruoff, Lee, Home and Marshall ii.

The Lancastrian Captain, H. J. Pike, has given House Colours to Lacey, Lee, Randell and Fulcher.

The Tudor House Captain, W. Bond, has given House Colours to Robinson, Alston, Gowen, Jones i., James, Stokes, Morley, Rouff, Turner, Marshall ii., Home, these being all the members of his victorious first eleven.

The Yorkist Captain, E. H. Wright, has awarded House Colours to Gould, Johnson ii., Allen i., and Graham.

The House points for work and games for the Christmas term were:—

	Work.	Games.	Total.	Order.
Lancaster	104.7 (8)	30 (1)	134.7	(1)
Tudor	107.3 (1)	18 (2)	125.3	(2)
York	106.5 (2)	6 (3)	112.5	(3)

The Lancastrians thus won the Football Term Shield.

The School enjoyed an interesting Cinema Lecture at the Central Theatre on "The Arethusa Training Ship" and the "Shaftesbury Homes." About £2 were collected for these Institutions.

A new bicycle shed was erected during the Christmas holidays between the carpenter's shop and the red gate. The Day-boys took immediate advantage of the increased accommodation for the stabling of their steeds.

We have been pleased to see many Old Boys up this term. The following have looked in recently, Messrs. Cook, Abbott, Thurlow, Fulcher, Lummes, Lacey, C. J. Hinnell, and Shearing.

Harry King has reached Melbourne and has taken a post with Mr. Aubrey Stott, of Wheelers Hill, near Oakleigh.

We are pleased to hear that Lovelock has passed his preliminary Examination for the Institute of Chartered Accountants and has obtained a business post at Brighton.

The Tancred Studentships may interest some of our younger readers and we would draw attention to the particulars of them exhibited in the Big School.

We are informed that Birmingham has a post in Messrs. Mann, Egerton's, the well-known engineering firm.

Last Term's Inter-House P.T. competition which was held in the "Gym," and judged by Major Balders, resulted in a win for the Yorkists. The scores were: York, 98 points; Tudor, 86; Lancaster, 82.

The following boys were confirmed by the Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, at St. John's Church, on March 9th: W. S. Marshall, J. N. Morley, E. Turner, G. Nottage, F. H. Jones, E. R. Burdon, C. Ely, G. H. Smith, H. R. Gooding, and C. L. Haddon.

A breaking-up concert was held in the Big School at the end of last term. The efforts of all the performers were received with unstinted applause. We append a copy of the programme as a memento of a very jolly evening.

Scout Notes.

There has been little in our career this term which calls for comment. The term has been short; but we have done a good deal of hard honest work at First and Second Class Badge Tests and have made ourselves somewhat richer in general and useful knowledge than we were. Being Scouts we won't brag about the details here but will try to find opportunities of showing them. But there is a woeful scarcity of broken arms and legs in the School! Several Second Class Badges have been earned; the wearers are to be congratulated and imitated. Who is going to be our first First Class Scout? It is no easy thing to become a First Class Scout before one is fourteen years old, but it can—and we believe soon will—be done.

Mention of the age of fourteen reminds the Scouter of a curious question he was asked during the term: "Which is the more important, Scouts or Corps?" It seems to be a question some people outside the School are asking. A full answer will be found beneath the "London Letter." It is no more possible or desirable to answer that question than to decide whether the Third Form or the Fourth is the more important. Every young boy on entering the School hopes to belong to both the Scouts and the Corps, just as he hopes to pass through both the Third and the Fourth Forms. As we become both Scouts and Cadets there can be no question of priority. The question had never struck anyone in the School as likely to be asked.

We are already looking forward to Camp. Copies of a Circular Letter on the subject are in the hands of all parents of Scouts; we don't suppose that there will be many who will prefer to stay at home—for Camp is the Boys' Paradise. If all our 42 Scouts went, what a Camp 't would be! Well, why not?

There have been no promotions this term. One Scout left School at Christmas and we have welcomed two recruits.

The Competition for the Patrol Shield has produced keen rivalry and much efficiency—for the only way to do the other Patrols down is to be smarter than they are—during the term. It is yet too early to say which Patrol has won it. The Woodpigeons have had it for a long time; we wonder if they will manage to keep it.

Heigh-ho for the fine weather, long days, firefighting, cooking, treasure hunts, etc., etc., of next term!
