Editorial.

"Men may come and men may go but I go on for ever."

THE familiar words remind us of the School's stately progress down the stream of time.

Of men who have come into our midst, to stay we hope, for a long time, we welcome our new Comptroller, Mr. Hollond, the Dean of Trinity College, Cambridge, whose name is well known in the realm of Learning. Already he has paid two visits to the School. At the first he distributed the prizes, and during the second in which he went over the whole building, he took the opportunity of seeing us at our best: at work.

Of men who go it is our sad duty to record the death of Lord Francis Hervey. During a long life he has nobly maintained the honourable tradition of a family renowned for its generosity and helpfulness.

The School has long been the recipient of his interest and now he has further enriched it by the munificent legacy of £1,000.

"But I go on."

The School annals record 380 years of progress and the lives of many Old Boys gloriously attest the fact.

Long may Bury School flourish. Her present advancement rests with us.

Speech Day.

[With acknowledgements to the Local Press].

The postponed Speech Day proceedings took place on December 16th, in the Big School. The chair was taken by Ald. E. L. D. Lake Deputy-Mayor of Bury and Deputy-Comptroller of the School, supported by County Ald. A. Oliver Lusher, Ald. J. Ridley Hooper, Lieut.-Col. G. H. Long, Mr. J. Donald Hunter, Mr. S. J. M. Sampson (Clerk to the Governors), and Col. J. M. Wadmore (Headmaster).

The Prizes were distributed by Mr. H. A. Hollond, D.S.O., M.A., LL.M., Fellow and Dean of Trinity College, Cambridge, who just previously had accepted the Comptrollership of the School in succession to Canon Farmiloe. Mr. Hollond is a Suffolk man whose family has resided for many years at Great Ashfield.

Ald. Lake, regretting the departure of Canon Farmiloe, the late Comptroller, referred to the immense amount of interest he had taken in the School and said he was a great pillar to them as Chairman of the Governors. They welcomed as their new Comptroller, Mr. Hollond, whose family had been connected with West Suffolk for many years, and personally he considered that that was an appointment of which the School had every reason to be proud. (Applause.) The speaker went on to refer to the progress made by the School, and after congratulating the headmaster, staff and boys upon the success achieved, emphasised that the outstanding success was that of J. R. M. Wright, of Mildenhall, who obtained an open scholarship at St. John's College, Durham, and with that, one of the scholarships awarded by the State. He also congratulated the boys who passed their School Certificate examination, and finally forced home the importance of parents giving their boys the privilege of continuing their education up to the last possible minute. It seemed a pity, with the advantages and facilities given in a school like that, to see boys going off into public and commercial life at the early age so many did. The last two years, when a boy was 17 or 18, were the most important years of his school-life.

In his report of the 380th year of the School's history, the Headmaster welcomed the visitors, referred to the departure of Canon Farmiloe and, with that, the appointment of Mr. Holland as the new Comptroller, and said that the past year had been a memorable one. The outstanding success had been that of J. R. M. Wright, who won the open scholarship of £50 to St. John's College, Durham, passed the Higher School Certificate examination with distinction in English and History, and was awarded a State Scholarship on the result of that examination. The Governors also awarded him the 16th "Hewer" School Leaving Exhibition of £60. When they remembered that Wright had gained one of about fifty scholarships awarded by the State for the whole country, they would see that it was an achievement of which he might well be proud. (Applause.) W. C. K. Stubbing had passed in nine out of ten papers, and E. G. Peppiatt in history and elementary science. It seemed singularly hard lines that one single failure should have cost Stubbing his whole certificate. In the School Certificate examination P. T. Champness, J. B. Hornby, H. I. Roberts and F. P. S. Shoberl had passed. The actual proportion of those who passed was quite satisfactory.

Referring to games, Col. Wadmore said that cricket, football and hockey had been played with zest and sportsmanship and a fair proportion of the matches had been won. The School was in the fortunate position of possessing an old-established O.T.C., which although not strong numerically, had always been noted for its efficiency, and the Inspecting Officer, Gen. MacNamara, had reported that the discipline of the contingent was very good and the tone first rate. The boys were keen, imbued with the right spirit, and obviously determined to do credit by the contingent and the School. The Headmaster pointed out that it was in the O.T.C. that those boys who did not happen to shine in games, received an opportunity of showing initiative, power of instruction, and ability to lead. The Troop of Scouts continued to flourish.

Proceeding, he said that during the summer there had been extensions to the School buildings to enable them to accommodate sixty odd boys instead of fifty. They still needed a changing room where day boys could change under circumstances of perfect comfort, and a fund which had been started for that purpose, was reaching serious dimensions. Finally, Col. Wadmore said that a school was not made by its buildings. It was the spirit which counted for everything. He spoke of the co-operation and loyal assistance of the Governors, and the loyalty and enthusiasm of the Staff, and the assistance from time to time of the Depot Suffolk Regiment, and the energies of all other helpers and friends.

The prizes were then distributed by Mr. Hollond.

Writing (presented by Alderman J. Ridley Hooper, J.P.), R. Halliwell.

Mr. Hollond said that his family had lived 10 miles from Bury for the past fifty years, and his forefathers were Suffolk men. He remembered that Trinity College, Cambridge, of which he was a scholar and then a Fellow, was founded by the father of the founder of their School four years before, and he felt it a great privilege to be associated with so honourable a foundation as Bury Grammar School. There were comparatively few schools in the country with such an ancient lineage. He heartily sympathised with all that had been said with regard to the advisability of boys continuing their education as long as they possibly could. "I think that this country is not, perhaps, very forward in realising the great practical advantages of a thorough education," he continued. "I think that the most convincing argument in favour of the practical value of education—I won't say anything about the nobler side—is that which is afforded to us by the example set by those on the other side of the Atlantic.

You know of the extraordinary efficiency of our relations in the United States of America, and what achievements they have accomplished in every branch of human endeavour in the last 100 years. They have the reputation of being hard-headed business men, yet it is in that country where commerce above everything holds sway, more sacrifice is made for the sake of getting education than anywhere else in the world. A greater percentage of young men go up to universities and actually pay their way by doing jobs in the summer to earn sufficient money to go to college up to the age of 22 or 23. They believe it is going to be useful to them, and I think it is rather surprising that people in England, particularly our leaders in business, do not see that there must be something in education from a purely practical business point of view if the Americans are setting an example of that kind." But there was another side to the matter. They were living in an age of transition, and no one could foretell what changes were going to take place during the next fifty years or so. They might be even greater than those of the past fifty years. The next half century was going to demand on the part of everybody the greatest possible qualities of mind and endeavour, and it was those men and women who, as boys and girls, had laid a thorough foundation, who were going to play the most important part in not merely acquiring lucrative positions for themselves, but of being of service to the community and laying the foundations of a happier collection of human beings than had hitherto existed on this planet. After all, whatever one might say about the lot of mankind as a whole, it was a pretty sorry affair with considerable room for betterment. Finally he gave a few impressions of his first visit to their School and reminded them what they owed to their teachers. (Applause.)

Voicing thanks to the Comptroller, Ald. J. Ridley Hooper said they were glad to claim him as a local man as well as a very eminent educationalist.

Mr. S. J. M. Sampson, who is an old friend of the new Comptroller, referred to his great work, especially in connection with the close co-operation there is now between England and the U.S.A. with regard to the teaching of law.

Replying, Mr. Hollond recalled that the last time he heard Mr. Sampson make a speech was about 25 years before when he descended from the presidential chair of the Cambridge Union.

Thanks were voiced to the Deputy-Comptroller by Lieut. Col. G. H. Long and Mr. J. D. Hunter. Mr. Lake briefly replied.

Upon the call of a scholar, hearty cheers were given for Mr. and Mrs. Hollond, Mr. Lake and the Governors, Col. and Mrs. Wadmore, the Masters, and the visitors.

The visitors were afterwards entertained to tea by the Headmaster and Mrs. Wadmore.

Obituary.

A. W. PRESTON.

With regret we announce the death of Mr. Arthur Waters Preston, F.R.Met.S., principal of the legal firm of Messrs. Preston & Son. It took place at a Norwich nursing home after an illness dating from the 18th of last month, and a major operation performed on Monday last. As recently as the 4th of last month he read a paper of Meteorological Notes to the Science Gossip Club. He was a man of extraordinarily varied interests on the scientific side, which he practised with an industry all the more remarkable because they had to be run concurrently with the claims of a busy and exacting professional life. He was 76 years of age.

Mr. Preston was at Bury School from 1867 to 1871.

Showing a preference for the law, he in due course became junior partner in a Norwich firm.

He was the recorder for the Meteorological Society's Climatological Station at Norwich. His personally compiled records date from the 1st of January, 1888. Of the value of them the public in general must be well aware. He was accustomed to contribute monthly and yearly notes to the Press on that unflinching topic of interest, the weather. He was the recognised expert of the subject.

As secretary of the Norfolk Rainfall Organisation his reports were regularly supplied to the British Rainfall Society.

Mr. Preston's concern with the weather was appropriately matched by an active interest in gardening. For fifty years he was a member of the Norfolk and Norwich Horticultural Society, of which he was secretary from 1881 to 1888. This was not the expression of a merely æsthetic interest in flowers for he was a skilled botanist, particularly attracted to wild flowers. To the Norwich Castle Museum he recently presented a herbarium of British plants collected by himself in various parts of the country.

Mr. Preston had served the presidency of the Norfolk and Norwich Law Society and the Science Gossip Club. He was a sidesman for many years, and for a short time a churchwarden, of Christ Church, Eaton, and he was long a committee man of the Jenny Lind Hospital for Children. Many years ago, as if the range of his self-imposed responsibilities was insufficient, he sought and won a seat on the City Council. But that duty was not greatly to his taste; and he did not try to prolong it beyond a single term of three years.

Mrs. Preston survives him with a family of three sons and four daughters.

C. de J. ANDREWES.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. C. de J. Andrewes who was at the School from 1865 to 1869.

E. B. PEARSE.

We also regret to announce the death of the Rev. E. Burroughs Pearse, M.A., who was at School from 1874 to 1881. Mr. Pearse was vicar of St. Peter's, Southgate, Norwich.

London Letter.

DEAR SIR,

Revenge, they say, is sweet. For fuller details however you must apply to Hinnell. He should know all about it. Not that writing to you, Sir, is an unpleasant task. No one who knows you Sir, could believe that. No, the task is a happy one, an honour indeed, if only one had something to say which was in any way relevant to Old Buriens. Obviously a London Letter should contain news of O.B.'s in London, whether these be but birds of passage, or full-blown Cockneys. And there's the rub. I never seem to see any O.B.'s., with the notable exception of Hinnell; and I do my best to avoid him about this time of the year, knowing only too well, from personal experience, his laudable intentions. But it seems impossible to escape him. If I am not having lunch with him, I am playing hockey with him. Here I may mention that, although we are not in the International class with John Ashton, yet Hinnell does score some remarkably fine goals for the Bank of England. I must also take this opportunity of saying how extraordinarily well he and C. W. Turner organised this year's London O.B. Dinner. It was quite the best show we have so far had in Town, and it really is a pity that more Old Buriens did not turn up to support it. It is not merely a duty, it is a thoroughly enjoyable way of spending an evening.

Except for those who came to the Dinner, I think E. F. Wise is the only O.B. I have seen in London this year. I saw him one night in the House of Commons, sitting with Mr. Maxton. The latter spoke, but Wise did not, much to my disappointment.

The central facade of the new Bank of England was unveiled a few weeks ago. It has received an enthusiastic welcome from all art critics, and certainly looks very imposing, although the new Old Lady who dominates Threadneedle Street is unusually atrocious, even for modern sculpture. She can give points to Epstein's "Genesis," on view at the Leicester Galleries, however. Everywhere in London new buildings are appearing, each one bigger than the previous one. Five of the big six Banks—Lloyds, Westminster, Midlands, Nat. Prov., and Martins—have huge new offices round about Bank corner. Whiting is shivering in the cold whilst the new Lever House is being built, and Park Lane looks more like New York every day. But I hear that a new shop has been opened in Eastgate Street, so it is not only London that is constantly changing.

I beg your pardon, Sir, but even if comparisons are odious, yet all things go by them.

Yours sincerely,

G.V.R.

Old Buriens' Dinner.

The annual London Dinner was held on Saturday, 7th February, at the Garden Club. The numbers were somewhat disappointing, there being only fifteen Old Boys present. About sixty notices of the dinner were sent out just before Christmas, and twenty or so replies were received. Of those accepting one failed to turn up; he said he had not had a "reminder"! Does he think the poor bon. secretaries haven't enough to do without reminding people that they have accepted invitations?

The evening was otherwise a great success. The dinner arrangements were excellently carried out, thanks to C. W. Turner, who made it possible for the dinner to be held at the Garden Club, and did all the necessary "donkey work." The menu was most pleasing, so much so that a man who arrived a good quarter-of-an-hour after everyone else had begun eating insisted on starting at the beginning.

The President (Archdeacon W. K. Firminger) took the chair, and after dinner proposed the health of the School, to which the Headmaster (Colonel J. M. Wadmore) replied. The company then adjourned to the "Palladium," where a good variety entertainment was much enjoyed.

The following Old Boys were present at the dinner: G. Andrews, J. N. B. Ashton, P. J. Bacon, D. H. Burnside, W. K. Firminger, G. Fulcher, G. Gowen, G. W. Harding, C. J. Hinnell, H. Holworthy, G. V. Richdale, S. Strickland, C. W. Turner, E. T. Whiting, and E. W. Wright. The Headmaster was the guest of the Association.

The Humour of History.

There are two popular superstitions which I wish to kill in this little effort:—

- (1). That history is uninteresting and useless.
- (2). That University lectures are only intended as a remedy for insomnia.

I wish to proceed to work by telling a few of the interesting historical facts which I have learnt since I have been at Durham. I shall for the present leave out all the humour of the students (as for example, when one wrote in an examination that Jerusalem was the birthplace of Christ, and another ran into trouble by spelling the lecturer's name in a manner unknown to the said lecturer), and also the humour of the lecturers themselves. Here I wish merely to recount a few authenticated facts which are all vouched for by well known historians.

First of all, there are a couple of stories about trousers. One concerns a king of Bulgaria, Boris by name, who wished his nation and himself to become Christians. So he wrote to the Pope, asking him certain question, one of which was, "Can we still wear trousers if we become Christians?"

The second story must have been a dainty tit-bit for the society columns of the day. Louis VII. of France took his wife to Palestine on the 2nd crusade, and the queen adopted eastern customs, one of which was the wearing of trousers. The king, perhaps only naturally, strongly objected to his wife walking about in trousers. He remonstrated in vain, and finally divorced the obstinate lady!

The Crusades provide many curious incidents. One of the Arab chieftains wrote his autobiography which was discovered not long ago. It contains many fascinating stories written in a most amusing style. One of them runs something like this:—"A certain mosque had the floor strewn with grass. The grass harboured many fleas. The priest of that Church (may Allah have mercy on him) wishing to get rid of the fleas, set fire to the grass. The flames leapt up and consumed the whole church. That man had no sense!" What a climax to the story

It appears to have been the custom for those who had committed many sins to go on pilgrimages to the Holy Land and other places, in order to make recompense. The more villainous the man, the more pilgrimages he made. So when we read that Fulk the Black of Anjou made three pilgrimages, we expect some lurid details. It appears that he killed all his enemies within reach, threw his first wife over a precipice, and then stabbed her, and so ill-treated the second that she left the stormy court.

The Anglo Saxon Chronicle also has its humorous episodes. Perhaps one of the best is that which tells of a council meeting in an upper chamber. The floor collapsed and precipitated to the room below everyone except the archbishop, who was left supporting himself on a beam which remained in position.

In another place, a novel way of raising money for government purposes is described. The Chancellor summoned an army to Hastings, and asked each soldier to bring 10/- with him to pay for his expenses. When the army was assembled, it was announced that the war was postponed, but as the soldiers would not need the money, they could give it to the king.

Perhaps the most amusing story of all is that of King Oswy and his wife. The Roman Church kept Easter on a different day to the Celtic. Oswy kept to the Celtic system, while his wife adhered to the Roman usage. So while the queen was fasting for Lent, Oswy was enjoying his Easter dinner. This would cause trouble in any Christian household.

I will finish by quoting an extract from a 14th century book, which though not exactly historical, shows the continuity of history—that human nature does not change. It was written by a man named Bartholemus, in his Natural History.

"The cat is a beast of uncertain colour and hair. For some cats are white, some red, some black, some skewed (= piebald) and speckled in the feet and in the face, and in the ears, and he is in youth swift, pliant, and merry, and leapeth and ruseth on all things that are before him. And is led by a straw, and playeth therewith. And is a right heavy beast in age, and full sleepy, and lieth slyly in wait for mice. And when he taketh a mouse, he playeth therewith, and eateth him after the play. And he maketh a rueful and ghastly noise when one beginneth to fight with another."

I can vouch for the last fact. One does it nightly under my window!

An Ode to an Odious Microbe.

There's a pestilential microbe that when poor mortals swallow,
The most unpleasant feelings immediately follow.
Although he comes so often, he's never yet been seen
Except by men with microscopes who say that he is lean,
With scaly back and wiry legs and ghastly grass green eyes
(That brilliant green you always get by using fairy dyes)
I can't think how, I can't think why, this nasty little germ Should make a mortal stay in bed and sweat and fume and squirm! B.

'Flu!!

Hundreds of people died of "the plague" every day. All who had food in their tuck-boxes managed to keep alive, but "the poor" decided to stay in bed, as they had nothing to eat. The doors of the studies where there were "dead" were marked with crosses of blood in order to keep the plague away. Games were stopped, but WORK went on—and so very few people were seen downstairs. All day long the "dead" groaned and wailed, "Bring us some food."

The terrible plague lasted a week, but after that time even the expert could not make the mercury reach 98°5, and so, a week later, a sad crowd was seen getting out its algebra books and vergils once again.

Things brightened gradually, but another fit of melancholia fell upon all when the "potato digger" was sent home for three weeks' holiday, just because he had a few spots on his chest! All agreed that it was too bad, and definitely decided that it was All wrong when another fellow took three weeks off.

However, as an eminent Vith former said, "Time heals all things," and now all are rejoicing because they are about to get a month's holiday even if they are not spotted like the pard or by the vigilant eye of the sick room staff. ANNES.

Society (?) Notes.

I had the good fortune to be present at an interesting little dinner which Sir Rubberts held a few weeks ago at his charming apartment in the Row. His new chef, M. Epitaph is indeed a genius; his œufs à la Star were praised by all present. I was pleased to see Lady B. S. Gonk Petch there, she was wearing a charming creation of black school gownette, by Frenché, the Paris designer, I believe.

Signor Petruccio Tichelli and his brother Pedro have made a name for themselves by their coughtail parties. The Signor told me that the most popular of his concoctions was known as "Attaboy Bourneville," but he refused to let me into the secret of its composition. He also told me of a novel way which is used in the country around his birthplace to catch rabbits, the rabbits are enticed from their warrens by yokels, camouflaged and making noises like turnips.

I was pleased to hear of the success met with by the Kulloch-Ting big game expedition. The pick of the bag was a male, three-horned poodle of a type which, perhaps fortunately, is very rare now-a-days.

I use the word "rare" in its old English meaning and not as an adverb as so many people use it. I read a few days ago that it had been discussed in Parliament as to whether or not to impose a fine upon the use (or misuse) of this word, and that the only member who was opposed to doing so was Mr. Shag, M.P. for Ellsden.

Many members of Society are trying their hand in commercial ventures. Lord Higham has schemes for intensive cabbage culture. Lady Penny-push-Farthing Pew is interested in the future of synthetic soup, Lord Beejay is soon to take up a banking career.

Indoor games have become very popular this season, besides the shove-ha'-penny tournaments in which both Baron Killer and Sir Rubberts took part, indoor hockey has become the rage, the intensity of which even the cost of broken windows has been unable to lessen.

THE MAN ABOUT THE ROW.

Foreigners' Notes.

This term has been quite an eventful one for us boarders. Of course we showed our superiority over the Dayboys ("what conceit" say all Dayboys on reading this) by beating them 4—0. Our victory was no doubt due to the zealous way in which certain of the team, undeterred by the magnitude of the consequent expense, practised indoors when bad weather prevented ordinary practices.

Talking about bad weather reminds me—we had some good slides during the blizzard week. Several people, I am afraid slid more "sur leurs pantalons" than in the orthodox fashion.

We were in the grip of the "Black Death" for about a week. All except the sturdy people succumbed. The demand for thermometers was so much greater than the supply that it was seriously considered that use of the lab. ones would be necessary. Certain budding chemists, however objected to this on the grounds that they had enough to do without having to convert C. to F. all day long. With food, by some vulgarly called "grub" it was the other way—demand was greater than supply (or, at least greater than the amount actually supplied), one flute, B—R—Y ii. by name, was heard to wail in the middle of the night, "What is the good of bread-and-milk?" But then, to think only of the stomach shows an empty mind—don't you agree, B—R—Y i. ?

Then, after we had recuperated from the above. Some chicken-hearted people started developing another sickness. We don't want to mention names, but what was the great idea, my herbaceous cabbage? And you, my other friend, you went all wrong, didn't you, by falling ill after the "all clear" had been given? When it was spread abroad that all were in quarantine except those who could show scars, one of our chemists was asked by a misguided youth, "Will concentrated sulphuric acid leave a chicken pox mark?"

We were all pleased to hear that the School had been left £1,000, especially when it was suggested that perhaps it would be divided amongst us (the Boarders, mind you) so that we could live in peace and on baked beans for ever after. But, when I came to work it out, I was cast into the depths of despair. There are about 50 boarders, that means £20 each and about 800 tins of beans each, and even that would only last just over two years at the low rate of one tin per day. But some joyous news has just arrived—Mr. Heinz is going to cut his prices and so I may be able to live a little longer.

So, cheerio, Boarders! Best wishes for a jolly Easter Hols.

Stamp Club.

At the beginning of this term, thanks mainly to the energy of Mr. Swainston, we were able to form a Stamp Club. The Headmaster kindly consented to be our President, and the Masters, with the exception of Mr. Swainston who is Treasurer, to be Vice-Presidents. Peppiatt i. and Roberts agreed to act as General and Exchange Secretaries respectively. A Committee, consisting of all officials and one representative from each of the three senior forms, was established. At the time of writing we have over twenty members, exclusive of officials.

The main aim of the Club is to arouse an even greater interest in stamp collecting than has existed previously in the School. The Club has been successful in promoting the fair exchange of stamps, for this success our thanks are due to Mr. Barry who has presented us with some handsomely finished exchange books and to Roberts who has spent much of his spare time in ensuring the smooth running of the exchange system.

Several of the elder members have promised us talks on various subjects of philatelic interest. Mitchell gave us a talk on "Commemorative Issues" which was rendered all the more interesting by the sets and single stamps which he used for illustration.

Finally, let me issue an appeal to all stamp collectors in the School, from the First Form to the Sixth, Royalists or Foreigners—JOIN THE STAMP CLUB. The subscription is trifling, you will have the choice of over twenty collectors' duplicates and, most important of all, you will be helping to create a wider interest in our splendid hobby if you join up.

E. PEPIATT,

General Secretary.

Notes on Spring Term.

This term the Sixth Form has welcomed a new member, . . . Besides having lived in Suffolk much of his life and Yorkshire the rest, he is a famous grand slammer, is a keen member of the Society for the Perpetuation of the Suffolk Dialect, and has a good ear for music. His philosophic observation that "Time heals all things" has become proverbial.

The other day I discovered a piece of paper with the following mysterious words upon it:—

"RARE OLD PRINT

—the man who sawed down trees."

Evidently it was only a portion of a larger document. Perhaps our classical scholar can decipher it.

Our geography enthusiast has been engaged this term in correspondence with High Commissioners and other such people, as well as in bringing brown-paper parcels up to School.

Contrary to all expectation not even our expert tried his hand at the "Daily Mail" competition, "Can you write a Love-Letter."

With the "Cross-Country" taking place on the 28rd of this month many of our enthusiasts have taken to examining its muddy course. Apparently some imagine that the greatest possible benefit from a practice is to be obtained by running about half the distance, stopping, and then walking the other and usually the bigger half.

We have learnt several things of utmost value since the last holidays. M . . . I has opened our eyes to the beauties of our native tongue with the expressive comment "The English language is a marvellous conglomeration of different sources combined to form a glorious whole!" This same person tells us that we should write in italics any quotation we desire to put in an essay.

Two members of the VIth Form have been seriously warned to take their studies more quietly or each will infallibly have a nervous breakdown through overwork.

In a translation (the author calls it "literal") from a Latin writer, I read about someone who "devoured his tears"—in a fit of penitence or anger, I presume. This somewhat illogical statement may perhaps be explained by the chemists by the "Continuity of State."

To close in as happy a way as possible, I think nothing could be more fitting than a word about the O.T.C. The other day in the armoury I saw a piece of paper bearing the following lines :—

"Of all earth's heavenly pleasures
There's none that can compare
With drilling on a Tuesday
With our rifles in the air."

They were signed "The Optimist"—can anyone tell me why?

Football.

BURY SCHOOL v. THE OLD BOYS.

This match, the last of our football season, resulted in a splendid win for the Old Boys, very largely due to Turner's excellent play and captaincy. The O.B's. won the toss and played downhill, and after a very clever bit of work they scored through Cooper.

The School were without Booth for the first ten minutes. After a few very spirited attempts the School scored. At half-time the lemons cheered up the School XI. who quickly scored. But the O.B's. responded with four more, the final score being 9—2.

The well-deserved victory of the O.B's. was, besides being largely due to Turner, very much aided by the understanding between their halves and forwards. The game was not so one-sided as the score may suggest. M.C.C.H.

Teams—

Old Boys.—F. E. Turner, goal; Bird, D. E. Turner (capt.), backs; C. J. Tillbrook, D. Fulcher, B. King, halves; Gent, Smith, M. Lacey, Cooper, E. Baskett, forwards.

Bury School.—Hornby, goal; Sanders, Mitchell i., backs; J. Gent i., Peppiatt i., Rudd, halves; Husk, Roberts, Booth (capt.), G. King, Tulloch, forwards.

Hockey.

BURY SCHOOL v. MR. BARKER'S XI.

This match was played on the School ground on Thursday, 12th February. Mr. Barker won the toss and decided to play on the slight downhill. Play in the first half was very keen and although the visitors pressed hard, and the School forwards made several good rushes, no goal was scored.

Almost immediately after the interval the visitors broke through and E. A. Kelsey scored, soon after H. J. Pike scored the visitors' second goal. The School, rallied and, in quarter-of-an-hour's pressing play, succeeded in equalising through two good shots from Tulloch.

The visitors' defence was strong and, in spite of the fact that the School forwards were pressing hard, their opponents managed to bring the score up to 5—2 (H. J. Pike, 2; Mr. Barker, 1). After this however, the visitors noticeably weakened, and by time, the School had pulled the score up to 5—4, Roberts scoring two good goals. The School experienced bad luck in not making the result of this very enjoyable match a draw. E.P.

BURY SCHOOL v. BURY Y.M.C.A.

This match was played on February 14th, on the School ground. The School won the toss and played downhill. For the first half the game was fairly even. The Y.M.C.A. scored two goals, and then the School equalised through Tulloch and Roberts.

In the second half the Y.M.C.A. pressed more strongly and scored two more before the School replied through King. Three more goals were scored by the opposing forwards, and one more by the home team, before the final whistle went.

Thus a very enjoyable game was brought to a close with a win for the Y.M.C.A. by 7—4. Team—

Bury School—Secker, goal; Gent, Mitchell i., backs; Peppiatt i., Mr. Swainston, Rudd, halves; Husk, Roberts (capt.), Tulloch, King i., Mitchell ii., forwards.

ROYALISTS v. FOREIGNERS.

The Royalists, pale and in white, met the red and robust Foreigners on February 19th, a fine bright day, before the approving eyes of their supporters and under the command of Messrs. Barker and Swainston.

The Dayboys got smartly away and forced a corner, but the Boarders relieved and immediately pressed, however the defence gave them no time to shoot. After 20 minutes' even play Tulloch scored neatly for the Foreigners and soon after notched another from an opening engineered by Wright and Roberts. Soon after, Lloyd retired with a damaged finger, but King rearranged and inspired the Dayboys defence so that it proved a match for the Foreigner forwards.

In the second half the smaller side of the Dayboys perceptibly tired but the defence was good. It was penetrated twice only, first by Husk from a good individual effort, and lastly by Peppiatt i. The game thus ended in a win of 4—0 for the Foreigners. Teams—

Royalists—Secker, goal; Lloyd, Higgins, backs; Sanders, Rudd, Tilbrook, halves; Calton, Jamblin, King i. (capt). Sandford, Porter, forwards.

Foreigners—French, goal; Gent i., Mitchell i., backs; Orttwell, Peppiatt i., Chrystal, halves; Husk, Roberts (capt.), Tulloch, Wright i., Mitchell ii., forwards.

CHARACTERS OF THE ELEVEN.

- †*H. I. ROBERTS (captain, inside-left). A plucky and persevering player who makes the most of his opportunities. A conscientious captain.
- A. J. TULLOCH (vice-captain, centre-forward). A pressing forward who has led the forward line well during the season. Uses his stick well, and passes with judgement.
- M. C. HUSK (outside-left). A hard working wing, who passes and shoots well. Has scored a number of good goals. Must endeavour to keep on-side more.
- J. P. MITCHELL (right-back). Has filled his position well, and played steadily throughout the season. Clears well.
- *E. PEPIATT (centre-half). An energetic half, who combines well with the forwards. Has been handicapped by the weakness of the other halves. Lacks self-control.
- *P. W. MITCHELL (outside-right). Has filled a new position well, and improved greatly during the season. Should pass the ball sooner and hit harder.

- *J. P. GENT (left-back). Tackles and passes well, but often fails to combine with the right back.
- G. H. KING (inside-right). Rather slow. Should pass the ball more, and should keep up with the other forwards. Is uninspiring and lethargic.
- H. R. SECKER (goal). Has filled his position well, but must learn to use his feet more.
- R. R. HIGGINS (right-half). Tackles well, but must use more judgment in passing.
- G. H. CHRYSAL (left-half). Handicapped by size. Tackles well and tries hard, but must learn to hit the ball much harder and pass to his forwards.

Also played:—

- J. A. RUDD (right-half). Can play well when he likes, but unfortunately he has lacked spirit and keenness practically throughout the season.
- H. S. SANDERS (left-half). Has played well at times, but must learn to tackle more and to hit much harder.

Games Review and Prospect.

A few weeks ago the hockey enthusiasts gazed at the fixture list and regretted the paucity of fixtures. How little did they imagine that illness and the inclement weather would make this season one of dashed hopes and lost opportunities. Yet "There is some soul of goodness in things evil if men would but observingly distil it out."

How hard it is to see that goodness! but that it is there, I firmly believe. It is during such seasons that we learn to play the game for the game's sake, "to play the game beyond the prize."

The practice games have been bright, cheerful, and keenly fought, latent talent has been found, and most, if not all, have made good progress in the art; "positioning" is rather weak, but many have shown much dexterity in the manipulation of their sticks and the control of the ball.

May those who will be with us next season find the knowledge they have gained helpful in bringing glory to the School and themselves.

But all is not well. In a School of our size there are far too few who rouse themselves to any enthusiasm over games and out-door sport. Changing for games is too often regarded as a "beastly nuisance." You have a field close to the School, you have organised games, you have excellent opportunities too often neglected and ignored.

Act on your own initiative, get up scratch games in the break, be more ambitious, more energetic, more enthusiastic. Some of you who read these lines may one day have a chance of representing your School. What are you doing to prepare yourself for this honour?

In the daily newspapers we read of Old Boys gaining glory in the field of Sport—surely a School that boasts of "Varsity Blues" and Internationals can ill afford to neglect the games' side of School life. You have reason to be proud of the past, will the future be proud of you?

Members of the Second set have played increasing good hockey. It is to be regretted that two full elevens have never been able to turn out for an evening game. Under these conditions sides are apt to be unbalanced and coaching of little value. Still illness or detention have not deterred the keen people from getting a game whenever possible and it is pleasing to see a number of real hockey players joyfully developing their talents.

The Third set also show some promise, actions are beginning to speak louder than words with them, they keep their sticks down to match their voices, and we believe sometimes listen to the coach's advice as well as to his whistle.

The wintry weather has given opportunity for sliding and tobogganing which have been greatly enjoyed.

The long distance runners have gone into training for the Cross-Country which should prove an interesting spectacle.

We believe a Boarder is due to win it this year. We hope that all boys will make a point of getting and keeping fit during the holidays in preparation for the Sports. The regular practice and gradual building up of muscle flexibility and controlled power is the safe and sure way to win fame on the track.

There is a full list of cricket fixtures, including some under 14 matches and we anticipate seeing good games played in match-winning vein. It is rumoured that some enthusiasts have been seen already wielding the willow. May they make many runs when the temperature is 100 in the shade instead of 0 in the sun.

In conclusion we wish to thank all the Masters and many Old Boys, who have helped to make the games faster and more enjoyable.

O.T.C. Notes.

A short and, but for Cert. "A," an uneventful term. Four candidates were examined—most thoroughly—and three were successful. They have our best wishes for the written examination.

In connection with this, might I point out that one attendance at camp is essential for boys wishing to take Cert. "A."

The date for the Annual Inspection is not actually fixed but it will certainly be within the first month of term. Thenceforward our attention will be concentrated on shooting '22 on our own range, '808 either at Mildenhall or the Depot.

Camp this year will be at Tidworth Pennings. All boys eligible to attend are urged to do so, for camp has many attractions.

PROMOTIONS.

Corporal Husk to be Sergeant.
Lance-Corporal Porter to be Corporal.
Cadet Peppiatt to be Lance-Corporal.
Cadet French to be Lance-Corporal.
Cadet King, N. A. S. to be Lance-Corporal.

Scout Notes.

We have been fortunate in the weather experienced on Tuesday afternoons this term and have been kept indoors very little.

On the first Tuesday of term the Troop paid a visit to the Playhouse to see a film of wild life in Africa—"In the Land of the Lion." Mr. Cherry Kearton himself was present, and told us many interesting and amusing stories of the animals which he had so cleverly filmed.

Through the kindness of Miss Ledward we have paid two or three visits to "The Glen," and on one afternoon we had a most enjoyable cooking and EATING test!

Practically all new members have passed "tenderfoot," and will be in uniform early next term. A number too have passed their signalling test, and we hope next term to carry out some signalling schemes.

We congratulate H. I. Roberts on being appointed a School Prefect, and M. C. Husk, C. R. Paine and J. A. Rudd, on being appointed sub-Prefects.

We have been pleased to see the following Old Boys up: Messrs. F. Wigston, B. G. King, Champness, Fuller, Caie, E. Burdon, Stearn, Richdale, Home, Gent, and Lloyd.

J. R. M. Wright is to be congratulated on the award of a State Scholarship. 190 Scholarships were awarded in the whole of the country, 15 only being given on the result of the Cambridge exam., and altogether there were 2,744 candidates.

R. R. Higgins and G. D. Booth are to be congratulated on passing the School Certificate Exam. Higgins had 7 credits and Booth 5.

Booth has taken up a post in the Bank of Scotland. We imagine him counting "bawbees" and in moments of relaxation "banging saxpences."

Dr. Andrews gave the School an enjoyable address on the initiative and pluck of the settlers in Canada. We wonder if any Burians will seek occupation and a home in the Land of the Maple Leaf.

The School was entertained to a Lantern Lecture on the West Indian Islands. The lecturer, Mr. S. J. Milton, who had lived in the winterless islands made them seem very alluring.

The Vith Form Library is indebted to Mr. Barker for the gift of a large and comprehensive French dictionary.

N. Boys has presented two interesting books to the Fiction Library and a few more have been bought with library funds.

An annexe has been used this term to give sleeping accommodation to some of the boarders, who now number 55.

The Foreigners have won the Physical Training Cup again. They have also beaten the Royalists at work this term, points F. 25'2, R. 18'5, and at Hockey.

Work and games have been considerably interfered with by influenza and other infectious illness. At one time half the School were in bed.

The following boys were Confirmed at Bardwell Church by The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich on 24th March:—J. R. Barry, G. M. Chrystal, J. L. Halliwell, R. B. Hitchings, D. E. Jamblin, N. A. S. King, L. P. King, R. E. Newbatt, J. A. Rudd, P. G. Tilbrook, A. J. Tulloch, and K. A. Wyndham-Kaye. They were prepared for Confirmation by the Rev. T. E. Goodbody.

Old Boys' Notes.

We are pleased to hear that T. B. F. Ruoff has passed his Inter-Law Exam. Many O.B.'s will wish to join us in congratulating him on his success and wishing him good fortune in the coming final.

B. F. Lee has passed Part I. of the Institute of Bankers Exam. We felicitate him on getting through a mort of difficult subjects.

We also congratulate G. K. Nice who has passed the School Certificate with 5 credits.

We understand that Chris Charles has joined the band of O.B.'s who work in Lond.

We call the following from the London Press of January 81st:—

Sportsmen generally, and cricketers in particular, will to-day join in congratulations to Mr. Tom Collins, of Newport (Salop), on the celebration of his ninetieth birthday.

Mr. Collins is the oldest living cricket "Blue." Born at Warwick on January 81st, 1841, and educated at King Edward the Sixth School, Bury St. Edmund's, 1849-59, of which he was captain. He gained an open scholarship at Christ's College and went up to Cambridge in 1859.

In 1869—his last year at the University—he played for the Light Blues against Oxford at Lord's, and also represented Cambridge in the University billiards match, both in the singles and the four-handed game.

He was a dangerous bat when settled, but it was as a bowler that he gained his place in the Light Blue team. Standing 6 ft. high, he bowled right-hand fast-medium, and made the ball come in from leg. Those were the days of the roundarm bowling.

Mr. Collins was for many years Secretary to the M.C.C. He is an author as well as an authority on sport. He was a keen fisherman and a fine shot. As an instance of his mental alertness he still renders nursery rhymes into excellent Latin verse.

All Burians would like to know that the Headmaster sent congratulatory greetings to Mr. Collins from the School on his 90th birthday.

Burians will hear with pride and regret that John Ashton was again chosen for the International Hockey Trials, but was unfortunately injured.

Mr. S. S. Strickland, an Old Burian, of Abbeygate Street, Bury St. Edmund's, has been appointed as Agent for the supply of Old Burians' Ties, Scarves, Blazers, etc., and Old Burians who are desirous of purchasing Ties (silk, 4/6), Scarves, Blazers, etc., should entrust their order to Mr. Strickland who will, on receipt of their order, attend to same without delay. Mr. Strickland has taken over the sole agency for Old Burian Ties and the Hon. Secretaries have relinquished their interest in the sale of the same, as it has been found more convenient to allow Mr. Strickland to deal with orders direct.

It will be much appreciated by the Secretary, and relieve the financial situation of the Association, if all Old Boys who have outstanding subscriptions will make a point of paying them in immediately on receiving a request slip. We feel sure it is only necessary to mention the matter in order to secure its performance.
