Editorial.

"LIFE," said a certain observer, "consists of one thing after another." He apparently overlooked School life in his definition, since it usually consists of having two or more things to do at the same time.

Of all the things which have happened, are happening, or are expected to be about to happen, the most popular is the adoption of the House System. This was introduced at the beginning of the term. The Royalists, who are almost twice as numerous as the Foreigners, were divided into two Houses, adopting the names of Yorkists and Lancastrians. The Foreigners, while still retaining their ancient title, also accepted that of Tudors as being most appropriate.

The Houses, besides contending in games, also compete in work, and the rivalry is so close that it is still a matter of surmise as to which House will be top. It has been pleasing to see the efforts some boys have made and maintained for the honour of their respective Houses, and it is hoped that their achievements will induce others, who have not been so keen and determined, to emulate their example.

Most boys are beginning to realize that he who does his best consistently, insignificant though the results may at first seem, surely gains power for himself, honour for his House, and credit for the School, in the long run.

With regard to Football, the team has been unfortunate in losing the services of several useful members from various causes, and a full side has never been put in the field. It is particularly to be regretted that Conlan, the captain, has been unable to play much this term; however, Gould i. has done valiantly in his absence.

The Cold-king has placed his freezing fingers on not a few unfortunates during the last two months, but most of his victims, being of a robust constitution, were able quickly to shake off the clutching hand. Now, even those who were most heavily afflicted have been released from his grip, and, if they respond to the care bestowed on them, should be fit to enjoy the rapidly approaching holiday to the full.

We hope that not only they, but all our readers, will find health and happiness amidst their Christmas gifts, and in such abundance as may suffice them for the coming year and make up for any shortage in the present one.

Speech Day.

[Account taken from the Bury Post].

There was a large attendance of parents and friends at the annual Speech Day of King Edward VI. School, which was held on Thursday, October 5th. Canon R. F. Wilson (Deputy-Comptroller) presided, he being supported on the platform by the Bishop of St. Edmundsbury (Dr. David), the Mayor (Councillor J. P. Parkington), the Deputy-Mayor (Ald. J. Ridley Hooper), the Rev. Dr. Gray, Canon E. Hill (Cockfield), Mr. John W. Greene, Ald. C. H. Bullen, Mr. J. D. Hunter, Mr. A. Oliver Lusher, and the Head Master (Mr. B. S. Richards, M.A.) Sir Adolphus Ward, Sir John Wood, the Archdeacon of Sudbury, Canon Fullford, Mr. W. R. Hustler; and Mr. S. J. M. Sampson, sent apologies for absence.

In opening the proceedings, the Deputy-Comptroller regretted the absence of the Comptroller, the Marquess of Bristol. He congratulated the School on having the splendid number of 120 pupils. He referred with pleasure to the fact that there were a good number of Old Boys present; it was good to see such men as Mr. Bullen, Mr. Greene, Dr. Hinnell, and Mr. Hunter, supporting the School on every occasion that they could. They especially welcomed the Bishop, not only as head of the Diocese, but as Dr. David, until recently head master of one of the greatest Schools in England, and one of the greatest authorities on education. (Applause).

The Report of the Rev. W. New, Rector of Stathern, and formerly classical scholar of Peterhouse, Cambridge, who had examined the School, was read by Mr. John Greene. "In conclusion," Mr. New said, "I can heartily congratulate Mr. Richards and his staff on the work of the past School year. There is a very healthy and happy tone pervading the School, the relations between masters and boys being cordial and natural. I rejoice with you in the increase in the numbers of scholars, and wish your School every success in the future."

THE HEAD MASTER'S REPORT.

In his report, Mr. Richards said that they had now introduced the House system into the School; there were three in all, called Tudor, Lancastrian, and Yorkist, and as a result there would be a greater extension of zeal throughout the whole School in both work and play. The officers of the Houses were elected by the boys. They had also introduced a system of free discipline, or better called self-government, which was simply an extension of the prefectorial system. It did away with selfishness. Every boy was an absolute and useful unit. If the boy failed, his form or house suffered. Under this system there was a captain and vice-captain elected by the boys, and the three top boys, each week, in each form, constituted the tribunal before which every question was brought. There was also a prefect attached to each form, and, of course, the form master. If any difficult point arose, which the boys could not adjudicate upon, they referred it to the prefect, then to the master, and lastly, if necessary, to him (the Head Master).

SLACKERS.

The pace of education was so great to-day that they had no room in the School for slackers. If a boy did not take interest in his work and games he was no use. The new system taught the boy that he must play the game in everything. They had a very high standard of sporting instinct in their games, and that spirit was carried into the classrooms. Every boy was put on his honour to do his best. That also produced esprit de corps, which was the solid foundation on which a school stood. They had introduced physics into the School curriculum to consummate the science side. In the "locals" of July, Lipscomb, Power, and Hinnell, obtained certificates. Last year, their O.T.C., which was an integral part of school life, obtained a splendid report from General Sir Cameron Shute. In connection with the O.T.C. Conlan was awarded Certificate "A." The Old Boys' Association was going strong. As to success amongst Old Boys, he mentioned that G. S. Gough had obtained distinctions in the mechanical trips and was now engaged in research work at Cambridge. Tom Ashton and S. Yelloly had passed the final law examinations, the former being now engaged in his father's office. In conclusion, Mr. Richards put on record his gratitude to the prefects and the senior boys. As head prefect, they had been most fortunate in having Conlan. He also thanked the Masters and the Governors for their consideration and support in all his undertakings at the School. (Applause).

THE BISHOP'S CONGRATULATIONS.

Before presenting the prizes, the Bishop said that it was always a pleasure to get inside any school. It reminded him of days which he always thought, when he was in the middle of them, would be the happiest of his life. Since he had been in Suffolk, however, he was not quite so sure of that, although he did occasionally find himself longing to be in school again.

He congratulated them on the Examiner's Report, especially on the concluding part, which was exceedingly encouraging. He was interested in the whole of what the Head Master had said, especially about the scheme for self-government and co-operative work. He had had experience of tentative efforts in both directions, and they had always been successful. For years they had been preaching the merits of co-operation and how to work together, yet by their marks and prizes they had been centring the boys on selfish efforts, and encouraging the idea of competition, which no one wanted to squeeze out of them, but which in boys, like all other human beings, would look after itself. His Lordship had asked the Head Master that his first visit to the School should be marked by a half-holiday—not as a precedent for the future—and Mr. Richards had agreed that it should be given at some convenient time. (Applause).

VARIETY OF OPPORTUNITIES.

He commended to the consideration of the authorities of that School a matter which had been in his Lordship's mind for some time. A boy first went to school full of enthusiasm, free and with individual tastes, said the critics, but soon he became blasé and jaded. While he was at School he learned something, but he left with no desire to learn any more. There was a certain germ of truth in that criticism. Boys, when they went to school, had got to do some very dull work. He did not agree with those extreme idealists in modern education who said that a child should never do anything that it did not want to. There must be drudgery; the most advantageous drudgery was that undertaken by the boys voluntarily. They needed to provide boys with sufficient variety of opportunities of expressing their own tastes, their hopes, and their own interests in some activity or other at school, if possible in a creative activity. He knew that boys attended school to learn, but they much preferred to make things. The latter was being given a much higher place in education than it was 30 years ago, for instance, in manual training, music, art, and acting.

THE DULL BOY.

Finally, the Bishop referred to the dull boy, of whom, he said, there were fewer than they imagined. In after life, these dull boys often did extremely well. When he was a school-master, he was always more interested in the dull boy, for the clever boy could look after himself.

PRIZE LIST.

His Lordship then distributed the prizes as follows:—

VI. Form prize, Lipscomb, "Tennyson"; second prize, Power, "The Magicians."

V. Form prize, Hinnell, "Forty-one Years in India"; second prize, Lipsett, "French Revolution"; special prize, general good work and progress, Norton, "Sesame and Lilies."

IV. Form prize, Bond, "The Birds"; second prize, Coates, "Ingoldsby Legends"; special prize for good work, Marsh, "Wild Flowers."

III. Form prize, Hall ii., "Pickwick Papers"; (maths.), Bostroem, "Coral Island"; special prize for general good work, Theobald, "Napoleon Bonaparte."

II. Form prize, Porter, "Longfellow"; second prize, Haddon, "The Talisman."

I. Form prize, Nottage, "Sir Benjamin Franklin"; second prize, Marshall ii., "Virgil."

Preparatory first, Tilbrook, "Astronomy"; second, Burlingham, "Decisive Battles."

Special prize for scholar who had done most to help on the School during the year (prize awarded by ballot of the scholars), Conlan, "Macaulay's Essays."

Certificate "A" (O.T.C.), Conlan.

THANKS AND CHEERS.

A vote of thanks to the Bishop was proposed by the Mayor, seconded by the Deputy Mayor.

Thanks were voiced to the Deputy-Comptroller for presiding by Canon Hill, and seconded by Dr. Gray.

Cheers for the Bishop and the Governors were warmly given, as were also those for the Head Master and his Staff. At the call of Canon Wilson, parents and friends gave cheers for the boys.

Debating Society.

The Debating Society has been continued this term. Fresh members have been elected to the various offices, since the previous holders, for the most part, have left. The officers are:—President, H. A. Conlan; Secretary, C. J. Hinnell; Sergt. at Arms, J. N. B. Ashton; Committee—J. M. Dixon, R. C. Gooch, F. S. Wayman.

So far only two debates have taken place at the School this term, the first being held in the Big School on November 14th, when G. V. Richdale proposed that "Life was Better Living in the Days of Non-mechanical Transport." Mr. Manley opposed the motion, which was lost. The second debate took place on November 24th, when H. A. Conlan proposed that "Town Life is Better than Country." F. S. Wayman opposed the motion, which was lost.

On Monday, December 4th, a debate was held at the Athenæum, between the Bury F.O.D. and the School. H. A. Conlan proposed that "England is too much addicted to Sport." The School had a difficult task before them, the opposition being the easier side to take. The majority of those who spoke for the opposition seemed to think that the School wished sport to be abolished altogether. This was a great mistake on their part; the School meant that there was too much sport, not that there should be none at all. However, the debate proved very interesting, and, on being put to the house, the motion was lost by 40 votes to 26.

It is hoped that another debate will be held on Friday, December 15th, when the motion before the house will be that "Winter Sports are Better than Summer." C.J.H.

Cambridge Letter.

It is with great regret that another Cambridge Letter has to be written without being able to welcome any newcomers from Bury School. It is hoped that next year someone will be brave enough to try to defeat the examiners of the Little Go.

As there are only two undergraduates in Cambridge from Bury School it is very difficult to know what to say. Instead of telling you what we have been doing, you will find below an interesting comparison between a day spent by an undergraduate reading History and a day spent by one reading Medicine.

DAY SPENT BY UNDERGRADUATE— READING HISTORY.

8.30 a.m. Gyp (knocks three times on bedroom door): "Half-past eight, sir!"

Undergraduate (in a very sleepy voice): "Thank you!" (Goes to sleep again at once).

9.30 a.m. Gyp (knocks six times on bedroom door): "Half-past nine, sir!!!"

Undergraduate: "Oh dear! Yes! Thank you very much!!!"

He gets up quickly and has a moderately good breakfast. He then goes to look at his engagement list to see if he has any lectures and he finds that he has one at 10 a.m.

Undergraduate (to himself): "—— ——— This is very unusual. I thought I never had a lecture until eleven o'clock. I suppose this must be a day when I have to start work early."

He next tries to get to the lecture in time, but fails to arrive before 10.20 a.m. He may take some notes or he may not. By eleven o'clock he will be back in his rooms again, wondering what to do next. He may, if he is interested in History, do half-an-hour or even a whole hour's reading. By 12.30 he will be ready for lunch, so he either goes to have it in Hall, or else he has it in his rooms. After lunch he either plays Rugger, Soccer, Hockey, Tennis, Cricket, Fives, or Ping-pong. Perhaps, however, if he is not keen on games, he will go to the Cinema. Possibly there is just a chance he will do a little reading for an hour or so. There will be two books in front of him—one may be a History book, the other most certainly will be a novel. By 4 o'clock he will be thinking about having some tea. After tea he will very likely go to College to read numerous newspapers until it is time for his evening meal in Hall. After Hall he may either go to the pictures or theatre. Probably, however, he will go to his rooms and try to work for a little time. All being well, he will work on and off, chiefly off, until he goes to bed at 10.30 or 11 p.m., thinking he has done a good day's work. Sometimes, during a general election, one or two people, who read History, even find time to address meetings in support of the Labour or Bolshevik candidate. "Don't they M—T—N?" "Yes, they do!"

DAY SPENT BY UNDERGRADUATE— READING MEDICINE.

8 a.m. Gyp (knocks three times on bedroom door): "Eight o'clock, sir!"

Undergraduate (in a sleepy voice): "Thank you!" (to himself) "Heavens! I'm tired, but I s'pose I must get up!!!"

Half dead with fatigue, he throws himself out of bed and immediately he is nearly frozen stiff by the cold, because he has to get up so early. Having washed and dressed, he has a moderately good breakfast at about 8.20 a.m. He then sets off for a 9 o'clock lecture and arrives more or less in time (in many cases it is chiefly less than more). He tries to understand what the learned lecturer is saying, but often finds it quite impossible. From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. he goes to labs, and works there quite hard. Perhaps he may be able to get away by 12.30. Having had lunch, and read a newspaper or two, he usually goes back to the labs., or perhaps plays Rugger, Soccer, Hockey, Tennis, Cricket, Fives, or Ping-Pong (a medical very rarely appears on a sports field more than once a week). He remains in the labs. until tea-time, BUT instead of having tea he probably has a lecture until 6 o'clock. At 6.40 p.m. he has his evening meal in Hall, and afterwards has a chat and a little coffee with his friends. By 8 p.m. he is usually working again, not in labs. this time, but grinding away at books in his rooms. He probably works on all the evening and does not go to bed until midnight, 1 a.m., or even 2 a.m. Never, during a general election, or at any other time, do people reading medicine find time to address a public meeting. "Do they, H—N—L?" "No, they don't!"

It is hoped that the above comparison will be useful to Buriians who hope to come up to Cambridge. Don't think that the Medicine man has a bad time; he really has a very good time, and always looks cheerful. Probably the History man soon becomes bored by not having enough work to do.

Obituary.

CYRIL FISHER YOUNGMAN.

It is with great regret that we record the death of Cyril Youngman. He passed away at Felixstowe in October, after a long and bravely borne illness, which was provoked by the hardships he underwent during the War.

As a Royalist he entered the School in the Christmas term of 1909, and left, to take a commission in the army, in 1916. He showed considerable aptitude for work, but was even better at games; he captained the 1915 Hockey and the 1916 Football elevens, playing at centre-half, and proved himself an excellent captain as well as a fine player. At Cricket he was one of the soundest bats in the team, and his fielding and catches in the outfield were features of the season. As vice-captain of the 1915 team he supported his great chum, R. G. Evans, the Cambridge Blue.

He was also one of the Fives pair and hit, with the bare hand, extremely hard and accurately. It was in connection with this game that the writer first met Youngman and got his initial impression of the Bury School Boy. He and his partner came up to the School a day before the term began, hearing there were two masters on the premises who wanted a game. An introduction having been effected in the Study, during which at least one of the new masters thought that if the two boys were types of the ordinary Bury School boy, life was going to be exceedingly pleasant. An adjournment was made to the courts, where, although the masters were beaten, the original impression remained unchanged.

As a Prefect, Youngman was absolutely efficient; everyone had perfect confidence in him and he was entirely without side, and, although even the smallest boy was not afraid to approach him, he enjoyed universal respect and was regarded as the natural champion of those in trouble; this was perhaps the most beautiful trait in his character. He was famous for his cheerful smile, a true index of his unflinching optimism, which was contagious. He was a most entertaining companion and his society was always acceptable and greatly sought.

Although no sports were held in his last year, he was known as a good long distance runner, having carried off prizes for the cross-country and mile races in the previous year. On joining his regiment, 2nd Battn. Artists' Rifles, he occupied the first afternoon in winning the brigade cross-country, and soon after was chosen captain of the battalion hockey eleven.

In the fighting in France he had the misfortune to lose an eye, and was also badly gassed.

On being demobilised he went up to Cambridge, reading in the modern schools, on obtaining his degree he accepted a post in a preparatory school, but his constitution was so undermined by his war experiences that within a year he broke down, and after months of illness, bravely borne, he died at Felixstowe.

By his death the School loses a staunch supporter, his generation, yet another goodly man, and we ourselves, a well-tried friend.

JOHN HENRY WARD.

We regret to hear of the death of J. H. Ward in his 50th year. He died on September 11th, at Chicago, U.S.A. He was the son of Sir Wm. Ward, K.C.M.G., C.V.O., and was at the School from 1884—1889, where he is remembered as a quiet, pleasant, gentlemanly lad.

WILLIAM GEOFFREY GREENLAND.

By the untimely death of Geoffrey Greenland another delightful personality has been removed from amongst us. We, who knew him intimately, and appreciated his lively and endearing nature, can in some measure understand the feelings of those near and dear to him and sympathize with them in their great loss.

Geoffrey Greenland came to the School as a Day Boy in 1911. For some time he and his two brothers lived during term-time with their grandfather in Northgate Street. It is reported that they were so keen on work that, to assist them, their grandfather applied himself to the conjugations and learnt a language with them. Ultimately, when Geoffrey Greenland and Cyril Youngman were in the VIth Form, it proved to be the best classical form the School had had for many years.

Geoffrey, or "Puddy," as he was affectionately called, was as much a persona grata on the field as in the form. At cricket he was a good bat, a safe field, and an erratic medium bowler; while at football and hockey, although very light, he thoroughly deserved his place in the team. He was very keen, and his younger brother John, who in a later year became the School cricket captain, owed much to Geoffrey's assiduous coaching.

High spirited, tactful, and possessed of the most charming manners, he was beloved by all. He was gifted with a singularly clear and beautiful voice which responded to his every mood and seemed also to voice the sweetness of his disposition.

Quick witted, and something of a humourist, he loved to use long words and sounding phrases, which he mispronounced or misquoted in such quaint ways that nobody was quite sure whether the mistakes were unconscious or intentional.

On leaving School he went into his father's office to qualify as a solicitor. During the war he volunteered for the Navy but was invalided out; and, returning to his deeds and documents, he had just passed his Final Law exam. when he contracted quincy, and although operated on, died within a few days.

ARTHUR KINGSLEY BARTON.

We regret to hear of the death of A. K. Barton. He was at the School from 1905 to 1910, when, besides winning prizes for Divinity and English, he gained a History Exhibition at St. Catherine's and the Hewer Scholarship, and proceeded to Cambridge. Being lame, and thus deprived of the joys of the playing field, he occupied his leisure in developing a talent for acting, which later he turned to noble use.

[The following appreciation is taken from The Sphinx].

After leaving Cambridge, Barton was for two years a tutor at Borough Road Training College, Isleworth. Having been repeatedly ploughed by the doctors for military service, and being recommended to a warmer clime, he accepted a post in the Sultania Training College, and arrived in Egypt in 1916. Feeling his inability to serve keenly, he devoted all his spare time to theatricals and in voluntarily assisting in educational schemes for the benefit of the troops in Cairo.

Before all, came his work in the College. From first to last he looked upon efficiency in that as supreme necessity. He lectured with unflinching vigour to within a week of his death, while the excellence of the College library is largely due to him.

He was for three years the presiding genius of a dramatic company with a repertoire of some 60 one-act plays, a selection of which were played at the Y.M.C.A. and at hospitals and camps throughout the district. He also played leading parts at the Opera House and was almost entirely responsible for the production of three plays there. He expected much from members of his company and usually got devoted service, for by his own labour, often when desperately tired, and sometimes in ill-health, he shamed the slacker by his own example. His last illness was undoubtedly caused by his refusal to disappoint a large soldier audience when he was ill in March, 1919.

In the summer of the same year he gave up his leave to work in a department of the Residency which was shorthanded. At the same time he occasionally contributed to some of the London reviews, and the perfection of his style, coupled with his erudition invariably secured the acceptance of his work. All that was best in modern English and French literature he devoured. There were few subjects on which he could not talk well when he could be persuaded to do so. He had a clear analytical brain and a remarkable memory.

Everything Barton did he did well, but he was never satisfied with his attainments.

He hated self deception and was at times a severe critic and a remarkably candid friend. Meanness in any form of thought or action he could not understand; and to him sacrifice of principle was mean.

Scholarly, artistic, musical, witty, a brilliant talker, and something of an epicure, he was a charming host, but above all he was the most loyal and generous of friends.

After much suffering, endured without complaint, Kingsley Barton passed to his rest on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 7th. He was 30 years old. R.I.P.

Mr. C. F. WAYMAN.

Francis Charles Wayman, who died at Clare, Suffolk, on the 2nd December, aged 72, was at Bury School from 1862 to 1866. There may be a few old boys left who can recall him by the nickname of "Chip." He was the last survivor of the family of the Reverend William Wayman (Vicar of Great Thurlow for more than fifty years) five of whose seven sons were at Bury School. The deceased was admitted a Solicitor in 1872 and had practised at Clare for forty years. He married in 1891 Miss Alice Ray, who, with their one son, survives him.

Cricket.

CHARACTERS OF THE ELEVEN.

*†G. HATT-LIPSCOMB. Has been an encouraging and pains-taking captain. Is a determined player, and shows to the best advantage in an emergency. Has acted as wicket-keeper with some success. Is apt to keep his bowlers on too long, and his arrangement of the field is sometimes open to criticism.

- *†J. N. B. ASHTON. A neat careful fielder at cover, and a safe catch. His bowling, of the ultra-slow type with an excellent length, has occasionally had very satisfactory results, should keep his long fielders on the boundary. As a bat he is good on the leg side, but inclined to give long-leg an easy catch. With his reach should be more enterprising with off-balls.
- *†L. C. H. DE CHATELEUX. Has excellently filled the difficult position of point. As a bat he adopts a stance peculiarly his own, but rather cramped. Possesses a considerable number of good strokes, with a little more weight and strength and practice in timing he ought to be a useful bat.
- †H. A. CONLAN. Is a deep fielder of considerable use, able to hold difficult catches, and is not afraid of hard drives. Is handicapped in batting by his sight.
- †J. M. DIXON. As a bat possesses one good stroke, an off-drive, which he attempts to use too frequently. Between the wickets he is apt to be slow. His fielding at first slip has been extremely good.
- †T. H. GOULD. A bowler of considerable pace, but inclined to be erratic and forgets the deadly punishment to leg-balls off the wicket. As a bat he has improved considerably, but tries to score boundaries off too many balls.
- †J. E. STEARN. Is able to bowl a good length ball with good pace, but is inclined to become discouraged. Loses his deadliness by swinging the ball across the wicket. His batting is free, and with more height and strength he should become a very useful bat. There is still some room for improvement in his fielding of drives.
- †F. S. WAYMAN. A left-hand bowler, as yet rather uncertain but with some practice he should become a menace to any batsman. His batting is rather cramped, and he is apt to forget to keep his shoulder well forward.
- †M. A. MUMFORD. Another left-hand bowler of deadly accuracy. Occasionally he puts too much swing on the ball, thus converting a good ball into an easy scoring leg-ball. His fielding is excellent, but his batting is at present rather reminiscent of a reaper.
- R. C. GOOCH. As a fielder at square-leg he is good. There are times when he might try and move quicker. In his batting he employs marked defensive tactics, but can drive strongly.

- A. S. WAUGH. A slow bowler of peculiar action, his fielding and throwing in are good; occasionally he bats well, but is rather stiff, with more strength and practice he should become quite good. G. HATT-L.

* 1st XI. Colours, 1921. † 1st XI. Colours, 1922.

‡ Half-Colours, 1922.

SECOND ELEVEN CHARACTERS.

- C. J. HINNELL. Has been a keen and painstaking captain. Is a steady promising bat, and is developing into a useful bowler.
- M. J. BIRMINGHAM. Is a good fast bowler, though at times rather erratic. He bats freely and hits hard. Is a safe field.
- G. C. BACON. Is a free and hard-hitting bat, but at times not quite quick enough. His fielding has improved since last year.
- B. S. LIPSETT. He can hit hard, but is still rather stiff and awkward. Makes an excellent deep field and throws in well.
- D. ALSTON. Is quite a promising bowler, but at present has rather an awkward action. His batting is good, but he is inclined to hit out too much before getting his eye in. A safe field.
- E. D. BOBY. His bowling is usually good, but at times his length is rather erratic. His batting is improving, but is not yet very steady. A fair field.
- D. H. NORTON. Is a promising medium bowler. Is at present rather slow in batting. He fields well.
- G. D. FULCHER. He keeps wicket well, but must learn to get behind the ball rather than reach out to stop it. He needs practice in batting, being rather unsteady and erratic.
- C. G. SETH. His batting is rather weak. Must learn to stand well up to the ball. His fielding improved towards the end of the season, but he still needs practice in catching.

- E. W. COOK. His batting has improved slightly, but he is still rather slow and inclined to jump away from a leg-ball. Needs practice in fielding.
- W. E. R. BOND. For his size he plays very well in all respects. His batting is good, especially on the leg. Will in time develop into a useful bowler, but at present his length is too short. Is a very safe field.

Football.

BURY SCHOOL v. FORNHAM ALL SAINTS.

The Football season began on Saturday, October 7th, with an excellent game against Fornham, in the School Field. Play was very even. In the first half Fornham scored, but although the School continually pressed in the second half they were unable to equalize. The game was thus lost by 1-0. Team :-

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Conlan (capt.), Gould i., backs; Mr. Hindle, Mr. Tobin, Fulcher, halves; Mr. Manley, Mr. Mackreth, Ashton, Bobby, Waugh, forwards.

Referee—Mr. Richards.

BURY SCHOOL v. THE TERRITORIALS.

On Thursday, October 19th, this match was played at home. A very strong wind down the field disorganised the play. During the first half the School scored once, and the Territorials responded with a goal in the second half. The game thus ended in a draw. Team :-

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Gould (capt.), Cook, backs; Mr. Hindle, Mr. Tobin, Stearn, halves; Mr. Manley, Mr. Mackreth, Ashton, Bobby, Waugh, forwards.

Referee—Mr. Richards.

BURY SCHOOL v. FORNHAM ALL SAINTS.

The return match was played away, on Saturday, October 21st, in a gale. The School were without Conlan, Lipsett, Mr. Tobin, and Mr. Mackreth, while they found Fornham at full strength. Playing against the wind, 5 goals were scored against the School in the first half, and the match ended with the score 8—1. Team:—

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Fulcher, Cook, backs; Stearn, Gould (capt.), Mr. Hindle, halves; Waugh, Bobby, Ashton, Birmingham, Mr. Manley, forwards.

BURY SCHOOL v. KING'S SCHOOL, ELY.

This was played under perfect conditions on Tuesday, October 24th, at home. The School were without the services of Conlan and Lipsett. At the commencement the home team played up, and immediately attacked; during a mêlée in the goal mouth the Ely goalkeeper collided with the goal post but managed to save. On his recovery mid-field play ensued, both sides exhibiting dash and using their weight. At last, from a pass across the mouth of goal, Wayman, who was well up, scored. In spite of energetic play, the score remained at 1—0 at half-time.

After the interval Ely attacked vigorously, but thanks to good work by Gould at centre-half, whose kicking was a feature of the game, the tension was relieved, and soon he was bombarding the other goal; however, no score resulted. Soon after, from a good effort by the Ely forwards, a goal resulted, and they had very bad luck in not scoring a second time. With a few minutes to go, a corner was conceded to the home team, from which a goal resulted. Thus, after a very fast and open game, Bury defeated their ancient rivals by 2—1. Besides Gould, Stearn and Fulcher played finely, and Gooch, in goal, did excellent work. Team:—

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Mumford, Fulcher i., backs; Cook, Gould i. (capt.), Stearn, halves; Wayman, de Chateleux, Ashton, Bobby, Waugh, forwards.

Referee—Mr. Richards.

ROYALISTS v. FOREIGNERS.

Played on Tuesday, November 7th. The Royalists lacked Conlan, and the Foreigners Lipsett. A fast and keen game resulted. In the first half Bowyer, who was repeatedly prominent, scored from a good effort, however, Bobby managed to equalise in the second half. Both sides had bad luck in not adding to their scores, and in quick succession shots hit the insides of the upright and bounced back into play. For the Royalists the halves played a good spoiling game, and Norton appeared to be the hardest-working forward. For the Foreigners Stearn played a sterling game, as also did Gooch, while Alston, Bowyer and Mumford did all that was required of them. Teams:—

Royalists.—Hinnell, goal; Cook, Fulcher i., backs; Bond, Gould (capt.), Thomson, halves; Wayman, Norton, Ashton, Bobby, Birmingham, forwards.

Foreigners.—Gooch (capt.), goal; Mumford, Wreathall, backs; Dixon, Stearn, Alston, halves; Lovelock, de Chateleux, Bowyer, Waugh, Vigors, forwards.

Referee—Mr. Richards.

BURY SCHOOL v. IPSWICH SCHOOL.

This match, postponed from half-term, was played at home on Thursday, November 9th. Ipswich were the heavier and faster side, and, in spite of excellent play by Gould at centre-half, and valiant efforts by Stearn and Mumford, they scored 4 times in the first half and 3 in the second. The School forward line was very ragged, and one member seemed to have mislaid himself somewhere in the neighbourhood of the right-half during a large part of the game. Although the ball was returned time after time to the forwards by Gould, they rarely made any ground, and never looked dangerous; while the Ipswich backs invariably cleared at the first opportunity. The game was fast and vigorous, and, although outplayed, the team kept trying. Gould, in the second half, had two good shots at goal which just missed scoring; and especially at the beginning and end the home team played up well, the outsides trying particularly hard. Team:—

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Mumford, Fulcher i., backs; Cook, Gould i. (capt.), Stearn, halves; Wayman, de Chateleux; Ashton, Bobby, Waugh, forwards.

Referee—Mr. Tobin.

BURY SCHOOL v. THE COUNTY SCHOOL.

Played at home on a wet, cold day, November 18th. The School, although very weak, played hard, and scored in the first half from a good opening made by Bobby. On changing ends the visitors got more of the play, but good work by

Gould and Stearn kept them at bay until the last five minutes, when they broke through and scored four times in quick succession, to which our forwards were unable to respond.
Team:—

Bury School.—Hinnell, goal; Cook, Fulcher i., backs; Boby, Gould i. (capt.), Stearn, halves; Bond, Norton, Ashton, Waugh, Birmingham, forwards.

Referee.—Mr. Tobin.

BURY SCHOOL v. EAST ANGLIAN SCHOOL.

Played in fine weather away, on November 30th, this match was lost. At half-time the score stood at 2-0, and another goal was added to the adverse balance in the second half. Gould played hard at centre-half. Stearn at back showed flashes of his best form. Bowyer at centre-forward made several rushes, but the wings did not support him adequately. The East Anglian shooting was accurate, and Gooch in goal had much to do, he was safe, if not brilliant.
Team:—

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Conlan (capt.), Stearn, backs; Fulcher, Gould i., Thomson, halves; Waugh, Boby, Bowyer, Birmingham, Wayman, forwards.

BURY SCHOOL v. IPSWICH SCHOOL.

Played at Ipswich on Saturday, December 2nd. After an evenly contested first half, the School were beaten 6-0.

Gould and Gooch played a splendid game, but our forwards on the whole were ineffective.

Our opponents outclassed us in size, speed, and knowledge of the game. Team:—

Bury School.—Gooch, goal; Conlan (capt.), Stearn, backs; Fulcher, Gould i., Cook, halves; Waugh, Boby, Ashton, Thomson, Wayman, forwards.

ROYALISTS v. FOREIGNERS.

The re-play of the Day-boys v. Boarders match took place in ideal weather on Tuesday, December 5th. The Day-boys were at full strength, but the Boarders were without the services of de Chateaux and Dixon, besides several smaller players, and Mumford, who had been recently vaccinated went from back to goal.

The Royalists played up at first, but in spite of repeated efforts were unable to score, Stearn and Waugh doing good defensive work. At half-time there was no score.

After some open play the Day-boys attacked, and a penalty kick being awarded, Gould scored. Waugh then went into the forward line, but although several rushes were made, in which he and Vigors were usually prominent, no result was achieved. Meanwhile the Day-boys were not inactive, but the forwards, although well fed by the backs, seemed incapable of shooting. At last Gould gave them an example, and put in a shot which Mumford had no chance of stopping. Thus time came with the result 2-0 in the Royalists favour.
Teams:—

Royalists.—Hinnell, goal; Conlan, Cook, backs; Fulcher i., Gould, Thomson, halves; Wayman, Norton, Ashton, Boby, Birmingham, forwards.

Foreigners.—Mumford, goal; Gooch, Waugh, backs; Fletcher, Stearn, Alston, halves; Parks, Vigors, Bowyer, Gowen, Smith, forwards.

Referee.—Mr. Richards.

SECOND ELEVEN MATCHES.

BURY SCHOOL 2ND XI. v. KING'S SCHOOL, ELY, 2ND XI.

Played at Ely, on Tuesday, October 24th. The match was lost by 5-0. Our undoing was chiefly owing to the lack of initiative and dash by the inside forwards. Hinnell, in goal, made some brilliant saves. Our opponents vastly outsize us, but the fact still remains that they were nearly always first on the ball.

Birmingham made one or two splendid isolated rushes on the right wing, whilst Bowyer and Thomson did good work at defence.

Special mention should be made of the steady kicking of Dixon, and the excellent tackling by Seth and Alston of fellows nearly double their size.

The conditions of the ground and weather were perfect. Our opponents, it should be added, played a particularly keen and sporting game. Team:—

V.M.

Bury School—Hinnell, goal; Seth, Dixon, backs; Thomson, Alston, Bowyer, halves; Bond, Norton, Bacon, Theobald, Birmingham, forwards.

The Second XI. have also played the County School twice, losing by 3—2 and 6—3. Against the heavy East Anglian XI. they went down to the tune of 7—0. Although defeated they have not disgraced themselves. Some of the forward play has been very good, though sometimes it has not been robust enough. Theobald is fast and neat, and swings the ball about well, and Norton and Thurlow have worked well. At back Shearing has done good work, and Alston and Bond, though lacking size and pace have always played a sterling game at half.

O.T.C. Notes.

The Corps work this term has been restricted solely to one parade a week. This parade has been mostly under the direction of C.-S.-M. Faiers of the Depot, who has smartened the Corps up considerably, especially in platoon and arms drill. The band has been started again under the direction of the Bandmaster from the Depot, and is going strong. The Corps received a D.P. Lewis Gun this term from the War Office for demonstration purposes.
